THE ANNUAL Washington's birthday dip in the cold Pacific (top) and Kim Novak's Carmel-based exercise classes are but some of the local happenings documented on film by Carmel Valley lensman John Livingstone. Works by Livingstone and Carmel photographer Frances Bradley will be featured in a dual show that opens Sunday. The "Focus on Travel" exhibit is described on page 39.

Carmel residents voice strong views in survey

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL CITIZENS do not want Harrison Memorial Library expansion directly on Lincoln Street, believe the city should build a fee parking garage at Sunset Center, favor allowing dogs on the beach, like July Fourth fireworks, dislike home mail delivery, and would pay for a recreation program offered by the city.

Those are just a few of the opinions expressed by Carmel registered voters, according to preliminary tabulation of responses to a city-sponsored questionnaire.

Council members have indicated they plan to use survey results in making major decisions. The preliminary survey results already have resulted in allowing Fourth of July fireworks. Work on public restrooms at the Post Office parking lot also was speeded in response to previews of the survey.

The city this week received tabulations of the first 1,000 questionnaires, which were mailed last spring to the approximately 3,900 registered voters who reside within the municipal limits.

Approximately 1,950 citizens responded to the 83-question survey questionnaire, which covered issues ranging from the library, to parking, to dogs on the beach, to cable television service.

Staff planner Brian Roseth, who is in charge of the questionnmaire project, stressed that these results are preliminary and based on just a little more than half of the total surveys returned.

"We expect the actual final results will be different, particularly where there's cases that are too close to call," Roseth told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Final results are not expected until August. The preliminary figures also were delayed by about two weeks because the tabulators, students at California Polytechnical University at San Luis Obispo, had to evacuate in the wake of the recent major fires.

Cross tabulations also will be forthcoming, but more on a piecemeal basis as staff has time to analyze the data and what it means, Roseth said.

An example of cross tabulation is to analyze the responses to proposed changes at Harrison Memorial Library compared with how many of the respondents use the facility on a regular basis.

People who care

Dear Editor:

I wish to draw attention to one of the finer citizens living on our peninsula. Ed Haber of Carmel Valley moved to the peninsula in 1946 and has been concerned over the welfare of residents in Carmel Valley and beyond by being instrumental in improving the quality of life for many.

He started the first newspaper in the Valley and has been involved for almost 40 years in public service as follows: He was a volunteer in the upper Carmel Valley Fire Department as well as on their board for 10 years, and helped establish the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Department, where he has served on its board for almost 15 years.

Ed Haber has also served on the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula board for six years, is chairman of the Monterey County Emergency Response Committee, a director of the Monterey County Sheriff's Advisory Council, and an honorary member of the Monterey County Peace Officers' Association.

He also was president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners' Association, which placed the original building restrictions in the Valley that prevented our area from becoming another Orange County.

In the humane area, in which I am involved, he contributes substantially to the following: the SPCA, Animal Welfare Information and Assistance Inc. (mine), and the Fund for Animals (Cleveland Amory's goat rescue mission); and most recently he is helping the Carmel River Steelhead Association with its admirable fish rescue mission that is currently under way.

I think the people on this peninsula should be thankful for people who care.

Hijack lessons

Dear Editor:

From the tragic TWA hijacking, Americans should more clearly realize the importance of being better informed about world politics and the wisdom of questioning whether President Reagan's foreign policies are in the best interest of the United States.

Is the Reagan administration's macho, Rambo-type mentality good for the U.S. image or does it exacerbate world problems?

Is it not a financial and moral disaster to give arms and money to governments in Latin America and elsewhere, enabling them to cruelly repress their people under the guise of anti-communism?

Isn't it stupid to bankrupt our nation with trillion dollar nuclear weapons which must never be used, while neglecting the well-being of our people?

Isn't it malicious foolishness to falsely promise security from nuclear attack with a technologically naive, militarily foolhardy, economically ruinous and morally repugnant Star Wars scheme?

From the hijacking experience, President Reagan should learn that terrorism escalates from an increasing sense of powerlessness in the face of perceived injustice; that the horror and destruction of terrorism is small compared to war, which nations consider quite legitimate; that retaliation is counterproductive and serves to escalate further terrorism.

Richard Stethem tragically was murdered by a hijacker whose wife and child were killed when the U.S. battleship New Jersey shelled the Shiite villages in retaliation for our Marines murdered in Beirut in retaliation for U.S. support of Israel in the terrible destruction of Lebanon in retaliation for border raids, on and on endlessly.

Blind retaliation must stop lest it escalate into a world holocaust.

Traffic warning

Dear Editor:

Parking lots and garages discourage traffic as motels repel tourists. We should learn from the recent holiday vehicular melee. Carmel's enfeebled and potholed streets and citizens require relief from a problem much greater than the large parking structures envisioned by our architects.

The recent citizens' questionnaire, a noble effort requiring herculean effort to collate in an unprejudiced air, was definitely biased in favor of some action, any action. Should our options now be cast in concrete?

For instance, the idea of erecting parking lots elsewhere was not considered on the questionnaire. Do we not want to limit massive structures, noise and traffic? The Carmel School District needs money. At the high school there is parking-designated land seldom used during peak traffic periods such as weekends, holidays, evenings, and summer. A large parking garage and shuttle system taking people up and down Ocean Avenue every five or 10 minutes would be a quiet, esthetic, practical, and lucrative endeavor. Carmel could support its educational district by underwriting the expense and perhaps even contribute some of the "in-lieu parking moneys" it must spend.

True, employees need parking. So do guests and tourists. Any well-managed scenic preserve, whether government owned, such as Yosemite, or privately owned, such as large resorts, provides for employee parking at a considerable distance from the center. Most employees are provided shuttle service. Parking for guests and tourists is also quite often in the periphery of a scenic area. In our rush to build let us not deface the gem's center with yet another concrete bunker of emission, filth and noise.

A better idea

Dear Editor:

With the cuckoos and the commies, the sillies and the socialists, and the loonies and the liberals advocating disinvestment in the Republic of South Africa, it is refreshing to read that there are still those around who possess a common-sense approach to solving South Africa's apartheid problem.

IBM South Africa is going to spend 20 million Rand (approximately 10 million U.S. dollars) to aid some 250 schools with a computer-assisted system for teaching what they call the "Writing to Read" system. South Africa's Black children, its Colored children, and its Asian children will be the beneficiaries of this IBM-developed program.

IBM is going right into the Black teacher training colleges where Black teachers will receive special instructions on how to teach the system.

IBM President and Chief Executive Officer John Akers is quoted as saying, "We believe one of the most important things we can do to promote change in South Africa is to advance the educational development of Black South Africans. (See South African Digest, Pretoria, June 14, 1985.)

Now isn't education a lot more sensible strategy than those wacky demands for disinvestment?

It would be awfully hard for the disinvestment advocates to explain to all those Black children how they are going to help them by putting their mothers and dads out of work. And that is for sure what would happen if the disinvestors have their way.

EDITOR'S DESK

BY ROBERT MISKIMON

WITH THE 1985 Carmel Unified School District recall election now history, the highest item on the agenda for the board of education ought to be the nurturing of a sense of unity and harmony.

Bitter wounds have been opened in recent months during the recall campaign, and these will not heal overnight. Both sides to the controversy have fought cleanly and with determination, but now it is time to stop fighting.

The purpose of a school district is not to build the egos of trustees, or provide a power fulcrum for teachers, or berate and belittle trustees or citizens through the political process. Its purpose is to educate children.

To the extent that the recall campaign and the resulting division in the community has pitted parent against parent, teacher against school board member, and citizens against the district, this purpose has been given a low priority.

With the exercise of the democratic right to free election and the right to petition public officials, the will of the voters has been heard. No purpose whatever can be served by any continuation of the differences that led to the recall election.

Those who are truly concerned about the future of education in the Carmel school district have ahead of them the challenge of building a new future. With the able assistance of the new superintendent, Robert Infelise, this challenge can be met with hard work and community support.

The ultimate beneficiaries of this mission of peacemaking will be the children whose futures depend upon getting a solid education in their formative years.

Council is a jest

Dear Editor:

Enough is enough!

The Carmel City Council is a royal court jest! The council denied Clint Eastwood's building permit request, failing to realize he's drawn tourists to Carmel for years. Now that he's overtly involved himself in community services via the Special Olympics, will that be enough to win his permit? Does the council realize he can afford to pay the water bill for the complex? Still not enough, you say?

No ice cream cones? Really...

And now the council is going to close the gates to Pebble Beach. Since the council can't join them, it just won't play!

While the Carmel City Council is licking its cones, the world is spinning around it!

Had no complaints

Dear Editor:

I have read with interest the comments of the Carmel City Council members about the sand conveyor belt as proposed by the Pebble Beach Co. I cannot see how this proposed conveyor concerns the city of Carmel. It appears that their desire is to delay the Spanish Bay project.

I wonder what their reaction would be if the homeowner group of Del Monte Forest objected to a permit approved by them, allowing an improvement to a parcel of property in the city of Carmel.

I managed one of the two sand plants in Del Monte Forest for 14 years. This plant operated for over 30 years. The raw sand was moved by a conveyor system to the processing plant and we never had a complaint about noise or dust.

Reclamation is answer

Dear Editor:

Pebble Beach Community Services District is forging ahead with plans to construct a sewage treatment facility within the Del Monte Forest to serve the so-called Zone "A" — land not yet subdivided — owned almost exclusively by Pebble Beach Co.

Regulatory authorities have granted the Carmel Sanitary District an increase in sewer capacity to three million gallons per day, of which one mgd is the Pebble Beach share. Present needs of PBCSD are 700,000 gallons per day. Ultimate capacity of the CSD plant is four mgd.

CSD now has capacity to serve Del Monte Forest to full build-out. PBSCD's proposed sewage facility is, therefore, completely unnecessary and a waste of money, no matter whose.

With regard to use of reclaimed water for irrigation of golf courses, CSD has expended $1.8 million of federal, state and local funds for design of a wastewater reclamation facility, complete and ready for construction. It sits on a shelf in the CSD office awaiting funding.

The merits of the CSD project have never been seriously questioned. EPA's refusal to grant funds is a result of its own internal disagreements, delays and lobbying by the PBCSD board, and changes in Washington fiscal policies.

CSD is seeking the assistance of Monterey Peninsula Water Management District in an effort to determine a method for funding its reclamation project. If PBCSD's 600,000 gpd project is built, it will cut the heart out of CSD's two million gpd project. What a waste.

New dam or not, this area must ultimately turn to reclamation for golf course irrigation.

Consider parking proposal

Dear Editor:

Councilman Maradei's proposal for underground parking (Pine Cone/Outlook, June 27) at Sixth and Lincoln sounds like a darn good idea. It would provide multiple usage of the property regardless of the final decision for use of the property.

Such fresh and innovative thinking should be brought to bear on other city problems. Perhaps we would not have so many boo-boos to apologize for.

Several months ago I wrote a joshing letter suggesting that the council and planners erect a multi-story garage on that property and place a restaurant atop to utilize the gorgeous view of the bay.

Nonsense, of course, but could Mr. Maradei's underground proposal also include a tastefully designed, two-story, above-ground parking facility that would resemble a Carmel-style building and provide much-needed space for 100 cars or more?

Might give it some thought; we sure need parking!

All challenged trustees lose school board seats in recall

By MICHAEL GARDNER

VICTORIOUS new trustees Hilton Bialek, Claudia Daniels and Pat Herro have just a few days to bask in their Tuesday night election win before confronting the problems of the Carmel Unified School District.

Herro, Bialek and Daniels will be seated on the board during a special meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, July 30 in the Carmel Middle School library.

Recalled in the special July 23 election were Robert Fenton, James Yates and Susan Bromfield — the board majority who were seen by recall backers as belligerent to the public, unnecessarily critical of staff and unwilling to stop meddling in administrative matters.

The recall was not even close as 31.1 percent of the 16,585 registered voters in the district cast their ballots 2-1 against retaining Fenton, Yates and Bromfield. Two other replacement candidates — Tim Grady and Bill Sanford — were defeated in their attempts to gain a seat on the board.

In a separate election measure, a proposed $45 parcel tax that would have generated about $600,000 annually for the district failed.

The two parcel tax-related measures were supported by more than 53 percent of those voting., However, under Prop. 13 guidelines any increase in taxes must be approved by two-thirds of those who vote.

Most of the problems in the district center around money, or more specifically, the perceived lack of funds to run the district. The failure of the parcel tax will only magnify the many dilemmas.

Summer is budget time in public school districts and that's going to be one of the first official headaches for the new board members joining incumbents Doyle Clayton and Pat Condren, who were not targets of the recall campaign.

Additional pressures are going to be placed on the school board, which now is entirely made up of those very sympathetic to wage hikes for teachers and staff. A central theme in the campaign platform of the three new members was to provide better pay for staff while also improving morale.

But with an ending-balance in the tentative 1985-86 budget of $33,107 — less than enough to cover the costs of a 1 percent across-the-board pay raise — trustees will find rough going in their hunt for a balance between salary increases and maintenance of programs.

•

THERE IS some glimmer of hope on the financial horizon, but no definitive promises have come from the traditional source of revenue — the state legislature.

Figures are in a constant state of flux as Sacramento lawmakers continually alter funding measures or interpretations of the financial formulas.

Already there is lobbying to divert some of the anticipated lottery income from its originally-intended beneficiary, public education, to other social service programs.

Other dilemmas the board will face in the near future also center around the money issue.

The board has to decide what to do about overcrowded classrooms, especially at River School. Portable classrooms ordered earlier this year are seen as a short-term solution.

The question is whether the district can afford to reopen Carmelo School in Carmel Valley. One of the more discussed solutions to ease the student crunch is to offer classes at the school, which was closed three years ago because of declining enrollment and financial problems.

However, early studies indicate that it will cost the district an additional $50,000 annually to open the school.

If enrollment continues to climb, the district also must carefully staff as to avoid high student-teacher ratios. Traditionally, as student-teacher ratios climb, the next year affluent parents enroll their children in the less-crowded private schools.

For each student lost to private schools, the district can subtract about $2,300 in state income, which is provided based on the "average daily attendance."

The controversy over the seven-period day at Carmel Middle School will not go away. The program was instituted last fall as a tool to provide students with more time for electives in light of increasing graduation requirements.

But at about $80,000, according to administration-provided figures, the cost became too burdensome for the district to carry and the extra period has been discontinued.

There already have been several proposals — since put off by the former board until budget hearings in August — for additional music and counseling programs at the high school. Such programs cost money — a commodity in short supply.

The continuation school in Carmel Valley continues to provide low-student teacher ratios and excellent programs for students unable or unwilling to attend Carmel High School.

•

EACH YEAR staff asks for additional help, but each year those requests are trimmed or eliminated because of budget problems.

The continuation school has a point in that it pays for itself and through a variety of special government grants actually contributes about $100,000 to district coffers.

Staff members there believe they are justified in their continual requests for extra aides or another teacher based on financial figures.

The continuation school is an example of the continual tug-of-war between programs and dollars.

District-wide, the board faces a dilemma in its teaching ranks. Because of seniority, budget problems and program cuts, the district has a staff on the upper side of the pay scale.

This trend does provide experienced teachers, but it also negates possibilities of young, enthusiastic and less-expensive teachers the district says it needs.

Although the problem is infrequent, there also have been concerns aired about teachers who teach outside their field of expertise because they have seniority or their elective program was trimmed and the teacher must assume other classes such as social studies or English.

This board also faces the need to get some stagnant programs back on track. The most imperative, in the minds of many parents and staff, is Project 2000.

Project 2000 is a sweeping, innovative concept designed to make the district rethink its entire purpose, goals and programs to match the needs of students entering the 21st Century.

Project 2000 was developed by a team of educational thinkers in a series of workshops last summer. But because of the political turmoil, it lies on a shelf gathering dust.

A similar but smaller-in-scope program for the high school called Peer School Excellence also was not fully-implemented because the integral component — teachers — would not put in the extra time necessary for implementation. Teachers had declined additional duties throughout the year because of the lengthy contract dispute with the board.

The new board members in particular appear to believe that most of these impending issues are ones that can best be worked out through administrative channels. The burden now shifts to new Supt. Bob Infelise and the just-hired Associate Superintendent Vance Baldwin.

•

BUT DESPITE all their disclaimers that many issues are administrative matters, Bialek, Herro and Daniels must realize that the ultimate authority is the board.

Proposals may be offered by the administration, but the final vote is cast by the trustees, not Infelise.

On a more philosophical note, this board appears to already have buoyed the morale of teachers, who did not make it a secret that they supported the recall.

Association of Carmel Teachers President Jim Agan explained Tuesday night:

"We're moving in a positive direction as of tonight. Much of the negative influence...has been turned around tonight.

"We are excited about the future and we're excited about going back to the jobs we were hired to do. Tonight there was a drastic rise in the morale of the teachers."

Teachers had complained throughout the campaign that this board failed to treat them as professionals, refused to listen and made uncalled for public comments derogatory to teachers.

The new board members have acknowledged the financial difficulties that probably will keep future wage increases below what teachers want.

But Bialek, Daniels and Herro stressed throughout the campaign that morale can be beefed up without massive injections of cash. They believe that recognition, support and respect can be handed out in other ways as well.

There sentiments appear to be correct, evidenced by the low teacher morale this year despite the fact staff received one of its highest pay raises in several years.

Now that the broken board-teacher relationship fence has been mended for now with the election of Daniels, Herro and Bialek, another consideration is how to patch up the wounds in a community divided by the politics of recall.

Nowhere was the disappointment more evidence than in Lou Langley's face as she glumly faced the news that the recall had been successful.

The normally always-smiling and upbeat Langley, who personifies the parent volunteer spirit in Carmel, was even talking about slowing down this next school year.

It is people like Langley who this new board must convince to remain supporters of the schools.

In interviews after the results were announced, Bialek, Herro and Daniels indicated that an olive branch needs to be extended between the two sides now that the election is over.

'My first priority is to somehow get the people who supported the incumbents to understand we're concerned with their interests," said Bialek, who will replace Bromfield.

•

'WE ALL — them and us — have an interest in having an outstanding school district," added the retired educational consultant who also served on the board from 1963-1971.

His statements are echoed by Daniels, who will replace James Yates; and Herro, who will assume Fenton's board seat.

Daniels said her top priority is to "get a functioning team working together" and to build a "spirit of goodwill and trust" between the board, staff and community.

Asked how she can mend fences, Daniels replied: "It's basically calling back your friends...We are friends; we just had different views."

Herro added: "We start by working together as a team. We begin to understand the administration and they begin to understand us.

"We are dealing with caring, bright people on both sides. The wounds will heal with common human touches between people and restoring the sense that we're all in this together."

Letter challenges use of city parking fines

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PAUL LAUB is at it again. The Carmel businessman has filed a claim against the city of Carmel that seeks at least $1.3 million because of the failure of the council to provide more parking in town.

Laub, through attorney Hugo Gerstl of Monterey, filed the claim with the city in a certified mail letter dated July 15.

The council is expected to discuss the claim at its Aug. 6 session.

The claim is another in a series of disputes between the city and Carmel Valley resident Laub, who owns the Paradise building, northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street, and Laub's Country Store, southwest corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street.

In his letter, Gerstl accuses the city of collecting more than $1.3 million in overtime parking fines since 1976 without providing any additional facilities.

"It is the contention of the claimant that the city of Carmel unfairly competed with the merchants of Carmel by negligently or, alternatively, willfully failing to make a good faith attempt to erect a parking structure by virtue of the fact that this would have seriously depleted the traffic fine revenues collected by the city of Carmel," Gerstl alleges.

Gerstl implies that the city does not use fines to build more parking so the city can continue to collect addi[illegible]al funds for other operations.

"The monies which were collected from revenues from traffic fines could have been utilized to negotiate, obtain, build and maintain parking structures which would have benefitted the Carmel merchants who paid in-lieu parking rather than directly competing with them by refusing to build an in-lieu parking structure so that they could collect more fees.

"The Carmel merchants have thus sustained loss not only for the in-lieu parking to which they contributed, but also for the revenues which are held as constructive trustees by the city of Carmel," Gerstl wrote

His letter continues: "It is the contention of the claimant that all parking sums collected in the business area of Carmel since the collection initiation of in-lieu parking should be remitted to the Carmel merchants who have paid in-lieu parking, pro rata."

•

THE IN-LIEU fee is briefly mentioned in the claim, but also the subject of a separate lawsuit filed by Laub in Monterey County Superior Court on June 27.

In that lawsuit, Laub contends that the city should return more than $300,000 of "in-lieu" fees since the council still has not spent the funds for parking.

A new business is charged an approximately $20,000 per space fee if it cannot meet the city parking requirement .

For example, if the business is required to provide three parking spaces but can only offer one, it has to pay the city about $40,000.

The fee is designed to provide funds for the city to provide additional parking.

But parking fees are another matter, says City Atty. Don Freeman.

Freeman said there is no law "that I'm aware of" that requires cities to use parking fees to build more parking. He expects the council to deny the claim and submit it to the city insurance carrier for resolution.

Parking fees are placed in the city general fund and used for a variety of municipal purposes.

Laub's claim also asks that the city provide information on how much it earned in parking fees from 1972 to 1976. Laub contends that he has been unable to obtain that figure from the city.

Laub's claim is for at least $1.3 million. In a separate statement he asks for an additional $250,000 to cover court and attorney fees.

For several years the city has had under study numerous parking facility proposals, but thus far no new facilities have been developed in Carmel.

The two most-commonly mentioned locations are the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue, and the Sunset Center north parking lot.

RAIN OR shine, the city insists on getting its $7 overtime parking fee, but if businessman Paul Laub has his way the city will have to reimburse merchants $1.3 million in fines collected because the city allegedly has failed to provide more parking. (Michael Gardner photo.)

The corner site awaits city closure of its library expansion plans. An underground parking garage is envisioned if the city builds its library annex on that location.

If the library is expanded directly on Lincoln Street, the council has indicated plans for an underground parking garage with a park on top at the corner site.

The Sunset Center lot currently has room for between 125 and 150 cars, depending on how orderly the drivers park.

The city has studied various proposals for the lot, including a multi-story parking garage. So far, no action has been taken.

Conservation Corps seeks youth for assignment

As fires raged throughout California, more than 700 members of the California Conservation Corps were there to battle the flames, and the CCC is seeking more young people willing to join in the efforts.

With prospects for a long fire season ahead, the Corps is now hiring young men and women between the ages of 18 and 23 to assist the firefighting efforts as well as to tackle vital conservation projects throughout the state.

"Although firefighting is hot, dirty, and smoky work, our corpsmembers are out there doing all they can to protect homes and natural resources," said CCC director Bud Sheble. "We're looking for more young people who are willing to brave 'miserable conditions' to do something for their state."

Sheble noted that the Corps' motto is "hard work, low pay, miserable conditions" — something corpsmembers are certain to find true in emergency work.

The California Conservation Corps is a work ethic program which employs young people at more than 30 residential and non-residential locations throughout the state.

For information on joining the Corps, contact the nearest CCC center or state Employment Development Department office, or call toll-free (800) 952-5522.

IT TOOK JOHN RILEY 25 YEARS TO CREATE HIS TRUE MASTERPIECE.

John Riley's Masterpiece.

Some people believe it was his Lynx Master Model ... one of the best selling clubs in the history of golf.

Others suggest it was his Pinseeker Bombshell ... the all metal wood design that heralded a generation of imitations.

Still others suggest it was his most recent creations ... the revolutionary stainless steel insert woods and Repeater irons.

We argue that his true masterpiece was a concept it took John Riley an entire lifetime to develop and apply.

Hello Muddah, Hello Foddah. Here I am at ... Camp Carmel?

WHEN PAT Faverty put his Camp Carmel program together he planned activities in which his children could participate.

Faverty and his wife Suzanne this summer have once again offered the summer day camp at Carmelo School off Carmel Valley Road about six miles east of Highway 1.

Registration for the fourth session is 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, July 28 at Carmelo School. Cost of the program, open to children ages 3-12, is $150 for a full 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, two-week session. An $85 half-day program from 9 a.m. until 12 noon is open for ages 3-5 for two weeks.

Camp Carmel also offers a day care program from 8:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. at $2.50 per hour.

The July 29 session will continue through Aug. 9. The fifth and final session of the summer will be from Aug. 12 through Aug. 23.

Programs are varied at Camp Carmel. Some of the activities offered include: archery, soccer, crafts, puppetry, softball, drama, singing, small animal care, rocketry and special field trips.

Camp Carmel currently has an enrollment of 95 with 16 counselors.

In explaining his philosophy of Camp Carmel, Faverty said: "We are a positive environment for the kids. We offer small classes of one counselor to eight kids.

"We provide the kids with individualized attention. This camp was developed with an environment in mind that I'd like for my children," Faverty said.

The Favertys, who also operate Potrero Canyon School, have a tentative agreement with the Carmel Unified School District to offer a similar Camp Carmel program at River School during the 1985-86 school year.

Symphonies to vie for hearts, ears and dollars

By MICHAEL GARDNER

NOW THAT the legal entanglements appear to be resolved, the next question is whether the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas area can support two symphonies.

The original Monterey County Symphony Association and the newly-formed Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra both will open their respective 1985-86 concert series on Oct. 13.

With the labor dispute settled, the battle now is for musicians, patrons and season subscribers.

Representatives of both organizations claim that the musicians will play for them, and both symphonies insist that their orchestras will draw the audience needed to maintain financial solvency.

The new Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra was formed by a group of musicians and Monterey County Symphony Association board members who broke away from the symphony in anger over the dispute which erupted over the hiring of Clark Suttle of Phoenix, Ariz. as the symphony conductor.

The splinter group insisted that the symphony board of directors hire Oleg Kovalenko of Carmel to lead the symphony. The board of directors refused and the musicians called a strike April 26.

Kovalenko since has agreed to conduct the new orchestra. Meanwhile, Suttle has withdrawn as conductor of the Monterey County Symphony Association and that board has decided to offer the 1985-86 concert series under guest conductors.

Local 616 of the American Federation of Musicians also placed the symphony on the "unfair list" of employers, which would have virtually kept the top union players from performing with the original orchestra.

The labor problems appear to be settled after representatives of the two rival orchestras and the musicians' union met with Monterey County Superior Court Judge John Anton last week.

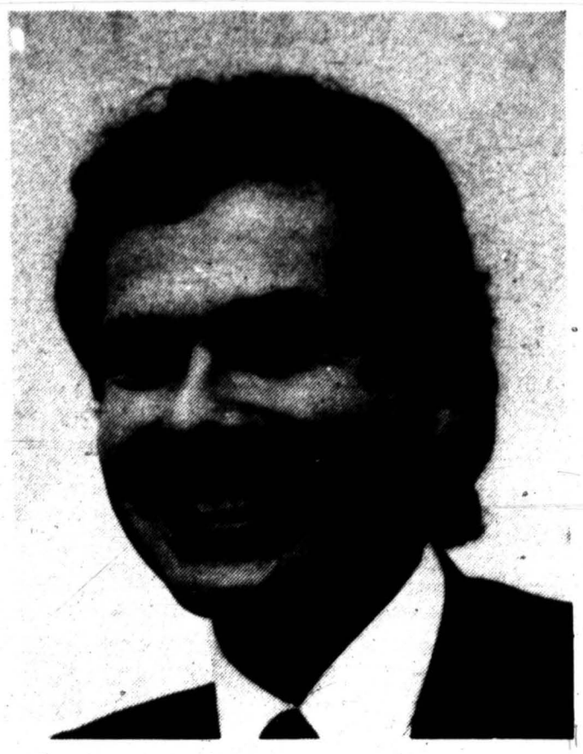
Under the settlement, the union agreed to remove the symphony from its "unfair list." In return, the symphony dropped its lawsuit against the union.

Both orchestras have promised to aggressively seek the best musicians and offer top programs for the concert series.

The original Monterey County Symphony Association series opens Oct. 13 in King Hall at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

The association, which also plays in Sherwood Hall, Salinas; and Sunset Center, Carmel; will continue its Sunday-Monday-Tuesday 8 p.m. series on: Nov. 17-19, Jan. 26-28, Feb. 23-25, March 23-25 and May 4-6.

BILL STEWART, general manager of the new Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra, says that 90 percent of the musicians formerly with the Monterey County Symphony Association will play with the new group.



RANDY BERNETT, president of the new orchestra, promises that the board will have an open door policy. "We will not use the so-called 'old-boy' system."

NORMA JEAN Hodges, second-vice president, announced that 40 percent or her board will be musicians.

•

TWO YOUTH Concerts also will be presented: April 16 in Salinas and April 17 at Pacific Grove Middle School.

The annual free Pops Concert will be presented May 18 at the Naval Postgraduate School.

Season tickets for the Salinas or Monterey series are $45 each for adults, $25 for military, $20 for senior citizens, and $65 for a family pass. Carmel season tickets are a flat $50.

Single tickets also will be available again this year. Carmel single tickets are priced from $9 to $11, Salinas tickets are $3 to $8.50, and Monterey tickets are $3.50 to $9.

For ticket information, call 624-8511.

"The Monterey County Symphony Association will proceed with a full 1985-86 concert season," board President Joyce Wright confidently told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook after the mediation session with Anton.

Wright explained that the symphony now is recruiting an "artistic advisor" to work with the symphony.

Longtime symphony conductor Haymo Taeuber filled the artistic advisor position last year while guest conductors led the orchestra in concert.

The symphony board has decided for now to offer the series of concerts under the auspices of guest conductors, which now are being recruited.

"We will not have a permanent conductor this season. This is at least what we have decided at this time," Wright said.

Symphonies to compete

The symphony association welcomes applications from all musicians — even those who went on strike, Wright added.

Wright is confident that the season will be successful despite the labor dispute problems and defection of some association members to a rival orchestra.

"I cannot be anything but positive. We're very enthusiastic," she said.

Meanwhile, the separate Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra is in the midst of organizing and taking care of the legal details to form a private non-profit, tax-exempt organization.

The new orchestra will open its series the same day as its counter-part — the Monterey County Symphony Association.

While the association plays in Monterey, Oct. 13, the new orchestra will premiere the same night in Sherwood Hall, Salinas.

In an interview with this newspaper, members on the publicity committee discussed the Monterey Bay Symphony Orchestra and its future plans.

•

BILL STEWART, general manager and legal counsel, said the orchestra has obtained about $20,000 in pledges without launching a fund-raising campaign.

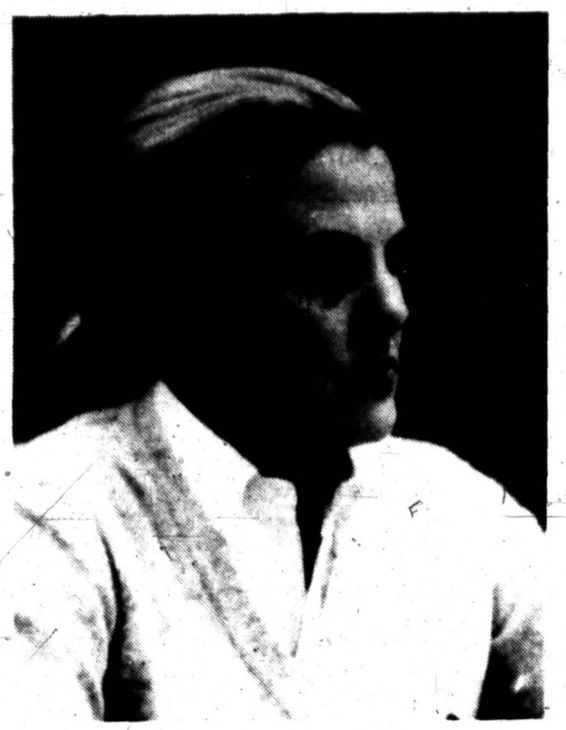
"That is voluntary without any requests on our part," he said.

Currently, the orchestra can accept only pledges and not cash donations because it still has not obtained its non-profit status, which is expected within the next several weeks, Stewart explained.

"We intend to appeal to every donor, private, foundation, cooperation or otherwise that has contributed to the orchestra," he continued.

Stewart does not expect any problems with finding qualified musicians.

"The background to this is the orchestra (the unhappy musicians) came to us to form an umbrella organization so they could perform," he said. "We don't have a personnel problem."



JOYCE WRIGHT, president of the original Monterey County Symphony Association, says she is enthusiastic about the upcoming season and predicts her group will have no problems attracting fine musicians.

Stewart predicted that "90 percent" of the 65 musicians who played in the symphony have tentatively agreed to sign with the new orchestra.

In addition, Kovalenko plans to expand the instruments so that there are 71 musicians, which will offer more flexibility in the music. Musicans will be paid on union scale and should earn about $1,500 to $2,000 in the season, he added.

The orchestra also has signed Herbert Holtman as concert master. An advisory committee has been formed as "our outreach to the world," said new board second-vice president Norma Jean Hodges.

Some of the more prestigious names on the new orchestra's advisory board include: Julius Baker, retired principal flutist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra; New York's Igor Kipnis, a leading harpsichordist; William Rusinak, a former conductor and violinist with the White House orchestra; and Camilla Wicks, a renowned violinist and artist in residence at the University of Michigan.

The policies of the new orchestra will be directed by an approximately 40-member board, which will be "40 percent" musicians, said Hodges, herself a former soloist with the symphony.

"The musicians will be co-participants with the management of the orchestra," added Randy Bernett, president of the new board.

One of the musicians' complaints is that they did not have enough input in the management of the separate Monterey County Symphony Association.

The philosophy of this new orchestra will be to offer music for all people, Hodges said.

"We do not expect to be an elitist, exclusive organization... Our goal is to encompass the entire public."

Bernett interjected: "What we really intend to do is solicit as many persons who are interested in music. We will not use the so-called 'old boy' system."

The Monterey Bay Symphony Association will debut at 8 p.m. Oct. 13 at Sherwood Hall in Salinas. The program will include selections from Mozart and Tchaikovsky.

The series will continue with performances at Sherwood Hall, the Naval Postgraduate School and Sunset Center. Dates are: Oct. 13, 15, 16; Nov. 13, 15, 17; Jan. 19, 20, 23; Feb. 16-18, April 4-6; and May 2-4.

Subscribers will receive one free season tictet for each $100 donation. Single tickets will be available from $6 to $12. For more information, telephone 624-6473.

Q. My wife disappeared for a few days, then called from San Diego and claimed she didn't remember how she got there! The last thing she remembered was having a drink with a friend in our kitchen. Her drinking has been a problem for some time now. Can this happen?

A. From your description of what happened, it sounds as if your wife is having blackouts. (A blackout is not to be confused with passing out, which is unconsciousness.) In a blackout the person walks and talks, apparently normally, but has no recollection of it afterwards. It is a form of amnesia and is one of the most terrifying things that happen to alcoholics. Blackouts are a definite symptom of alcoholism. Seek professional help for your wife now!

DISCARDED PIPES lay along the route that Pebble Beach Co. wants to use for its conveyor belt to transport sand from Sawmill Gulch to the Spanish Bay Resort project. The materials are part of the old slurry pipeline at Sawmill Gulch. The county planning commission has scheduled a 7 p.m. July 31 hearing on the conveyor belt, however, Pebble Beach Co. wants it postponed to Aug. 14. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Pebble Beach seeks delay in hearing on Spanish Bay

THE PEBBLE BEACH Co. will try again next week to get county approval for a nearly two-mile-long conveyor belt to haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to the Spanish Bay resort construction site in Del Monte Forest.

The Monterey County Planning Commission was scheduled to review the use permit application and supplemental environmental impact report (EIR) for the project at 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 31 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

However, Pebble Beach Co. plans to ask the commission for a continuance until Aug. 14 to provide the consultant with more time to respond to public comments submmitted as part of the EIR process.

Detractors of the Spanish Bay project — a proposed 270-room, 80-condominium and golf course resort — plan to protest a continuance to Aug. 14, according to Dee Olivetti of Pebble Beach.

Olivetti said that many residents want to attend an Aug. 14 Coastal Commission hearing in Eureka on the wastewater reclamation project proposed by the Pebble Beach Community Services District.

Olivetti plans to argue against the continuance because residents will be unable to attend both hearings on issues pertinent to Del Monte Forest. This is the second time the county planning commission will review the proposed conveyor belt, which will move about 530,000 cubic yards of sand from a Sawmill Gulch borrow pit to the resort construction site.

The city of Carmel appealed planning commission approval of the project based on claims that Pebble Beach Co. should be required to prepare a supplemental environmental impact report for the project.

Before that appeal was presented to supervisors, the company withdrew the application and agreed to prepare the additional documentaion.

The deadline for public comments on the proposed supplemental EIR is Friday, July 26.

The Coastal Commission — when granting approval of the Spanish Bay resort project March 28 — required that Pebble Beach Co. use the conveyor belt system for sand hauling.

Pebble Beach Co. originally wanted to use trucks to haul the sand, but that proposal was blasted by many Del Monte Forest residents who complained about noise and safety problems.

The trucks would have traveled through the neighborhoods between Sawmill Gulch and Spanish Bay from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. six days a week for about half a year.

The conveyor belt is expected to operate from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m. five days a week for about six months.

As a safety precaution, Pebble Beach Co. will fence the conveyor belt and have 24-hour a day patrols.

Tree clearing approved for embattled resort

PEBBLE BEACH Co. now can begin full-scale tree clearing for its Spanish Bay golf course holes on the seaward side of 17-Mile-Drive in Del Monte Forest, Coastal Commission staff announced Monday afternoon.

Staff signed off the permit for tree clearing after the company agreed to obtain and dedicate as open space one of three "environmentally sensitive" separate parcels, staff planner Lee Otter told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

The Coastal Commission — as part of its March 28 permit for the 270-room hotel, 80-condominium and golf course resort — required Pebble Beach Co. to purchase three parcels and dedicate each as open space.

The company will have to buy only one of the three before it can start clearing trees. However, all three will have to be obtained before the resort can open, Otter explained.

It will be the company's choice of which parcel will be first purchased. The three parcels have an assessed valuation of about $2.4 million, according to county records.

One of the parcels is 3.38 acres on the ocean side of Highway 68 near the planned location of the new access gate to Del Monte Forest. The site is identifiable by the white fence and gate. It is owned by the Oliver Anderson Trust. Assessed valuation is $16,010.

Otter said the property is "in the center of the Huckleberry Hill natural habitat," provides "unobstructed views" from the highway and also is the site of "valuable" Bishop pines and "rare" Manzanitas.

When this site is purchased, the company also must rehabilitate the upper Sawmill Gulch quarry and dedicate it as part of the Gowan Cypress Reserve. The quarry is a separate property from the Sawmill Gulch borrow pit planned as a wastewater reclamation site, Otter said.

The two other 2.5-acre parcels are on the ocean side of 17-Mile-Drive and represent "splendid examples of the natural Monterey Cypress habitat, not just the trees but all the understory habitat plants and wildlife," Otter said.

One parcel is owned by Newton Cope, who also owns La Playa Hotel in Carmel. Its assessed valuation is $1.020 million.

The second parcel is owned by a Stanley Glickman, who is listed as being represented by a Los Angeles law firm. The parcel is assessed at $1.377 million.

The purchases are considered a trade-off for the hundreds of trees the company will remove as part of the resort project. If the private parties refuse to sell, the company and Coastal Commission staff have agreed to look at other locations for open space dedications.

Alcoholism post opens

Karin Strasser Kauffman, Fifth District supervisor, is seeking applicants to serve a three-year term on Monterey County's Alcoholism Advisory Board. The board meets on the last Thursday of each month, varying their meeting places between Monterey and Salinas.

Interested applicants residing in the Fifth District are asked to contact Supervisor Strasser Kauffman's office at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, or call 649-6515. Results come in from poll of Carmel residents

Answers from those who use the library often may be given more weight than the response from those who infrequently use the facility.

One of the "more interesting" revelations, said Roseth, is that 66 percent of the 1,000 respondents shop in Carmel.

"The next question, however, shows that 79 percent shop outside," he continued. "That shows we still have a long way to go to get the mixed uses we need for residents."

•

AND ROSETH indicated that the responses concerning city controls on business pretty well support council practice to restrict tourist-oriented shops.

Final results will be forwarded to the still-to-be-hired consultant who will develop a master plan assessment for future growth downtown.

The responses also contain a few paradoxes. For example, 65.7 percent of the respondents state that the city has a "parking problem." However, 28.6 percent responded that they do not have any problem finding a place to park in town.

Roseth said the city has to be alert to minority responses because those concerns also must be heard.

For example, the majority (44.2 percent) believe cable service is adequate. However, there is a significant number (43.8 percent) of respondents who feel the cable service is inadequate.

"If you can make a change to assist those those, you should, as long as it also benefits the majority," Roseth said.

The proposed expansion of Harrison Memorial Library is one of the more hotly-contested issues in town.

The city council has under study a proposal to build an expansion directly on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues. An environmental impact report (EIR) is due in August.

Another plan studied frequently but thus far kept on the shelf envisions an annex and underground parking garage on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

A less seriously-considered plan would relocate services not directly related to the patrons to Susnet Center.

If the preliminary 1,000 responses are a true indication, Carmel citizens overwhelmingly reject the Lincoln Street closure idea.

Only 15.9 percent of the respondents support the plan to close Lincoln Street. Actually, more respondents chose "do nothing" over the Lincoln Street closure scheme.

The majority, 33.8 percent, favor moving some library services to Sunset Center, 29.4 percent support the library corner annex concept while 18.2 percent stated "do nothing."

If the do nothing, annex, and relocation to Sunset Center categories are added together, citizens oppose the Lincoln Street closure concept by a margin of 81.4 percent to 15.9 percent.

•

IN OTHER library related question results, the majority of the 1,000 respondents:

Rarely use other libraries (61.9 percent); most often checkout books rather than other materials (77.4 percent), believe that the library offers almost every service they need (68.7) want the facility to be open Sundays (68.3 percent).

Three years ago the library was closed on Sundays as a cost-cutting measure. But since the council has added funds to the budget to afford afternoon hours on Sundays.

Another 44.4 percent of the respondents stated the library is not too crowded. However, 34.8 percent responded that they feel cramped in the building.

Parking — an issue that seems to have been around Carmel since its 1929 incorporation — was the subject of many questions.

Of those answering, 65.7 percent believe that there is a parking problem in Carmel, but 28.6 percent admit to not having a problem finding a parking space.

The city has had under consideration for years a proposal to construct a multi-level parking garage at the north field of Sunset Center.

A majority of the 1,000 preliminary respondents indicate they prefer a new parking garage over increasing parking requirements in the commercial district or construction of smaller facilities in several locations.

Of the 1,000 preliminary respondents, 31.7 percent favor a Sunset Center parking garage, 19.0 percent want increased parking requirements, 18.6 percent support several small lots, and 17.4 percent answered "do nothing."

The city has plans to begin a thorough parking analysis that is expected to lead to more parking requirements. Currently, a new business needs to provide only one parking space per 1,000 sq. ft. of store space.

In a separate question, citizens were simply asked: "In your opinion should the city build a parking facility at Sunset Center?" To which 46.1 percent replied yes and 25.5 percent opposed the plan.

Of those who want the facility, 24.8 percent favor three levels, 11.1 percent support two-stories, while 1.8 percent prefer only surface-level parking.

If the city builds the facility, 36.5 percent want a park on top.

In response to who should be allowed to park in a Sunset Center garage, the answers are: anyone, 48.2 percent; residents, 29.5 percent; tourists, 22.9 percent; and employees, 22 percent.

(Some questions were answered more than once and that is why the totals add up to more than 100 percent.)

•

MORE THAN half of the respondents stated they believe a fee should be charged to park in the facility, but 43.4 percent replied that they would not use the garage if there is a fee.

Citizens by a 53.2 percent to 10.3 percent margin oppose future city land purchases to provide parking.

Another interesting paradox in the parking survey indicates that 29 percent of the respondents believe that the street is "frequently crowded with parked vehicles at all times day and night."

But 27.2 percent of those who answered simply do not think that the streets are crowded with parked cars.

Another section of the survey relates to the commercial district and the ongoing battle to control the proliferation of tourist-oriented businesses.

According to the results, businesses that the city has "to many" of include: antique shops, art galleries, gift shops and real estate offices.

Businesses that the city has "enough" of include the same list, plus bakeries, beauty salons, book stores, child care, cleaners, men's clothing, women's clothing, real estate offices and restaurants.

Some of the businesses the city needs more of include: art supplies, auto parts, book stores, furniture, hardware, hobby shops, movie theaters, doctors and stereo/television stores.

One interesting note is that book stores are on both lists of "not enough" and "enough."

In March the city attempted to restrict night hours of most businesses and went so far as to enact an emergency ordinance to require certain shops to close at dusk.

The 1,000 respondents by a 40.3 percent to 39.4 percent barely opposed the ban on night hours.

In response to the question "In your opinion, should businesses other than restaurants, theaters, markets, liquor stores, drug stores and gas stations be discouraged from operating during evening hours?," the answers are: 51.9 percent yes, 37.9 percent no, and 10.2 percent no opinion.

However, the wording of the question did not query whether the city should adopt a law banning night hours. The question uses the word "discourage." Another selection of words may have altered the results.

•

THE DAILY trip to the post office for mail is another tradition residents do not want changed.

Of the responses, 38.8 percent want to continue mail delivery at post office boxes only, 25.8 percent favor mail box delivery and clustered boxes in front of certain homes for those who wish personal delivery, and 5.6 percent support delivery to each home.

However, 50.8 percent oppose placement of clustered mail boxes in front of their houses.

In other results, the majority of citizens believe:

- There are "just the right number" of trees in the commercial district.
- The city needs more trees overall.
- Dogs shouldn't be banned from Carmel Beach.
- Fireworks should be allowed on the beach July Fourth.

Noisy Carmel herons just bringing up baby

By LARRY GROOMS

FOR REASONS known only to themselves, the black crested night herons of Carmel Point seem to be having a very good year.

That encouraging word on the environmental front comes from Alan Baldridge of Hopkins Marine Station of Stanford University in Pacific Grove. Baldridge, who is also associated with the Monterey County chapter of the National Audubon Society, has been keeping an eye on the Carmel Point nesting sites, and he says many of the nests in the eucalyptus grove appear to have produced young this year.

"I was impressed when I went over there," Baldridge said. "Nine of the 12 nests appeared to have young. That's a good sign. They were down to four or five a couple of years ago."

Although the black crested night heron is not categorized as an endangered species, the fate of the local colony has been a subject of common concern by environmentalists and the Coastal Commission.

While the black crested night heron roosts at several locations on the Monterey Peninsula, including Asilomar, El Estero Park and the Naval Postgraduate School, the colony breeds only in the tall eucalyptus trees of Carmel Point.

Concern for the future of the colony arose a few years ago, Baldridge recalled, after a number of trees on the point were cut down during home construction. Black crested night herons don't seem inclined to nest anywhere else, so Carmel Point could have been their proverbial last stand in Monterey County.

There are no known nesting sites for the birds anywhere else in Monterey County or Santa Cruz County, although nesting sites exist on some of the islands of San Francisco Bay and in the San Joaquin Valley.

The attraction to Carmel Point may be a combination of food and shelter, Baldridge speculated. He said the herons nesting on Carmel Point have ready access to the tide pools between Carmel Bay and Point Lobos, where they feed on crabs, tide pool fish and other forage. The tall, smooth bark eucalyptus trees are the exclusive choice for heron breeding nests, as the birds forsake nearby pine trees.

Baldridge theorized that the herons nest in the eucalyptus trees as a protection against the large and ravenous population of raccoons, natural enemies of egg-laden nests. The herons build their nests in the crowns of the highest trees where, Baldridge suggested, "any raccoon would have a job holding on to that smooth bark."

The critical nesting period for the heron begins each year in April and ends during July.

Baldridge said the nesting period is especially crucial for the birds, since the total population in Monterey County is usually counted at only 40 to 50 individuals.

The adult black crested night heron is a striking bird in appearance with its large and brilliant red eyes, white underbelly, gray upper wings and jet-black saddle topped by white head plumes.

But the habits of the birds are less attractive to some people who live near the nests. "They're fish-eating birds," Baldridge said. "When they let go ..." Still, Baldridge said, the mess is a minor inconvenience for a species that is unique to the area.

"People should know they have something unique here," Baldridge said.

County tightens rules for Chateau operation

MONTEREY COUNTY Supervisors — concerned about setting a precedent and possible violations of a court-ordered moratorium on intensification of use in Carmel Valley — Tuesday morning unanimously voted to tighten use permit requirements for the Chateau Julien winery.

Supervisors denied an appeal from the winery on Carmel Valley Road that sought to overturn county Zoning Administrator Dale Ellis' requirements that Chateau Julien greatly restrict its operations.

The decision means that the winery can no longer conduct special events such as weddings, charitable winetasting and catered dinner parties.

Chateau Julien and county staff also must work out a monitoring arrangement, subject to review by supervisors.

The winery also is required within 30 days to clean its percolation area for the winery refuse. That requirement was pushed by Environmental Health Officer Walter Wong.

The Tuesday hearing drew about 20 area residents about evenly split pro and con.

The complaints about the winery mostly focused on its social activities that draw traffic. There also were complaints about night lighting.,

Winery owner Bob Brower and other supportive speakers pointed out that Chateau Winery generates less traffic than the former use, a hay and feed store.

He also complained that limitations on public winetasting events and a requirement that the winery open its doors on an invitation only basis are economic detriments.

Supervisors, however, were unswayed.

Each expressed concern that past social operations of the winery indicate possible violations of its use permit.

Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas recalled that two weeks ago she called the winery to arrange a tour for her out-of-town visitors. Despite supposed invitation-only guidelines, Shipnuck said the winery told her that the visitors could tour the facility anytime on a drop-in basis.

And supervisors reminded Brower that they merely are clarifying the original 1982 use permit requirements. The county would violate the court-ordered moratorium on Carmel Valley building if it discarded those requirements and allowed the intensification of use, supervisors believe.

Son of local couple aims for NATO reserve title

Army Reserve Maj. Dennis W. Manske is on the competition road once again after earning a berth on an 18-man team training for the annual Confederation of Interallied Reserve Officers pentathlon in Oslo, Norway, Aug. 7-9.

Manske, 39, the son of Robert F. and Irene A. Manske of Carmel Valley, will compete along with other pentathletes from Reserve and National Guard units across the nation. They will pit their skills against NATO colleagues from 10 nations.

The three-day competition is composed of five events: running a 500-meter land obstacle course, swimming a 50-meter obstacle course, firing the host nation's pistol, rifle and submachine gun in the marksmanship phase and a combined skills portion which includes map reading and grenade throwing.

An aviation staff officer attached to the 328th Medical Battalion, Austin, Tex., Manske feels the Norwegians will be the ones to give the U.S. team the most competition.

"Norway is the nation to beat, and that's the case year after year, no matter where the competition is held," said Manske. "They're fit, have highly developed shooting skills and have fine-tuned their land navigation and small-unit leadership skills.

"But the U.S. should have a team in the top three this year, and two in the top five."

Manske's past participation in military sporting events reads like a travelog, with Greece, Denmark, West Germany and the Netherlands included in his CIOR itinerary. A CIOR competitor since 1974, the helicopter pilot has a wealth of experience, but still has one reservation on his potential performance.

DENNIS W. Manske, a major in the U.S. Army Reserve, will compete in a three-day pentathlon in Norway.

"My strengths are endurance and tenacity, as well as marksmanship and land navigation skills. But my weakness is swimming fast in a fatigue uniform during the water obstacle course."

The competitions are hosted each summer by one of the NATO nations. Last year the competition was held in Rome, and it rotates between the CIOR member nations of United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Denmark, Greece, France, Canada, Belgium, West Germany, the United States and Norway. But competition isn't necessarily the name of the game, Manske said, for camaraderie also plays a major role in the event.

"The camaraderie and challenges of CIOR competition are exhilarating," Manske said. "For me, it's as satisfying and challenging as performing an important mission under instrument meteorological conditions in a helicopter. The teamwork and mutual trust between all competitors are forces one never forgets or loses.

"I also enjoy the competition because of my desire to represent the U.S. at the international level of military skills competition. CIOR emphasizes the readiness of U.S. Reserve officers in combat skills under stressful conditions. The skills I learn in CIOR help me set the 'fit to fight' example for junior officers, warrant officers, NCOs and enlisted personnel. This competition makes me a better leader and aviator by developing courage, competence, confidence and stamina."

A 1964 graduate of Proviso West High School, Hillside, Ill., Manske went on to earn a bachelor's degree in engineering at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

Rude awakening

CITY FIREFIGHTERS got a rude awakening a little after dawn one morning last week when a garbage truck fire began right in front of the department on Sixth Avenue. Firefighters had to dump the garbage out of the truck and hose it down to keep the blaze from exploding the gas tanks. A city bulldozer and extra crew then were brought in to help clean up the mess. The Bartons toast Bach

'I HAVE the simpliest of tastes, I only want the best.'' This quote by playwright Oscar Wilde and seen on graphic posters of today, most appropriately describes the Barton dinner party Sunday evening, July 21.

An exquisitely manicured garden bursts with spring flowers and lines the long sloping driveway that introduces the more than 100 participants and supporters of the Carmel Bach Festival to the Barton home. If the design of the Barton home, its taste, quality and elegance, is any reflection upon the same type of dedication Jo Barton, president of the Carmel Bach Festival, gives to the festival then it is obvious why we embrace a successful 48th season of the Carmel Bach Festival now underway.

FRANCES GAVER, (right), vice president of the Carmel Bach Festival, conversed with Priscilla and Sandor Salgo. Maestro Salgo has been conductor of the Carmel Bach Festival for three decades.

Two story high glass windows reveal a view of the Pacific and the Big Sur Coast. Beautifully attired guests were entertained with a dinner buffet. Seated at round tables artistically placed throughout the home, even along the indoor swimming pool, the guests were cordially served wine by Gerald Barton. Shall we toast Bach, the musicians, the community, the board of directors, and the Bartons for making this 300th birthday of Bach a wondrous celebration!

Sarah Bouhaben

HENRY AND MADELINE Littlefield of Monterey enjoyed the Barton's dinner party celebrating the 48th season of the Carmel Bach Festival.

MIA FARONE of Carmel and Scott Wilsen of Carmel happily dined at the Barton's home Sunday in honor of the Carmel Bach Festival.

GEORGE WATTERS WINS FIFTH PLACE

George Watters of Carmel and his dog "Collie Bill" took fifth place, $55, in the fifth Annual Championship Sheep Dog Trials Competition at the Solano County Fair Saturday, July 13.

"The sheep dog trials are by invitation only and limited to seven entries," said Joe Simpson, judge for the event. "These dogs are the finest in the state — even outside the state. They go back to the nationals back east after competing around the west."

BOOK SALE — HARRISON MEMORIAL LIBRARY

The Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel will have its annual book sale Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 2 and 3 at the Carmel High School cafeteria. Mark your calendar and remember to participate in this major fund-raising event.

LEHMAN HONORED FOR DESIGN WORK

Gail Lehman of Carmel — of Gail Lehman and Associates — has received second place in the Third Annual Design International Competition for her work in the Bayou Cafe. The cafe that was located on the corner of Mission Street and Sixth Avenue has been sold and changed into Collage, but that does not matter.

"They judge on photos sent in the year before," Lehman explained.

Lehman has just recently returned from San Francisco where she started a new office nine months ago.

KIDS' BEAT

BY CAROLE COLTER

'THE CENTER is a place that's ours...the kids of the town, we should take advantage of it and use it," said Juliet Peck, the Carmel Youth Center's new youth council secretary.

This statement typifies the feelings of the Youth Council as a whole. Four courageous young adults willing to take on the shadows of the past and turn them into rainbows of the future.

Saturday's barbecue ended in the election of an outstanding Youth Council ready to take on the demands of fall activities. In addition, they are aware of the many youth factions dotted throughout the school district and the need to pull them together. With this in mind, a meeting has already been scheduled with the student body council from Carmel High School to coordinate activities for the coming school year.

Jim Markowitz, our new president, talks of uniting the different schools and especially the different classes at Carmel High. Jim, who has been active in the Youth Center for the past seven years, is looking forward to getting some "better ideas" happening in the way of programs.

"We want kids to have fun...to have some place to go," states Chris Hall, our new vice president. Chris, also a CHS senior who has a long-time investment in the Youth Center, is particularly excited about getting the snack bar moving again. "Hamburgers, milkshakes, that kind of thing."

The name Langley is a familiar one around Carmel, and now in addition to Lou Langley, who is an active member of the C.Y.C. Board of Directors and Padre Parents, we have Brennon supporting the center as treasurer for the coming year. Brennon, a junior at CHS, has been involved with the Student Council in the past and is active in basketball as well as being a strong leader on Buzz Ranier's championship golf team.

And then there's Juliet Peck, a 16-year-old varsity cheerleader who seems to have cornered the market on energy and enthusiasm. Juliet has been involved in such projects as the popular Safe Rides program, and is currently a peer counselor at Carmel High. As secretary she plans to help keep us in line and use her skills to promote programs and activities.

Our first project is the dance that's coming up on July 27. Michael Nardone, KSPB Radio's program director last year at RLS, will lead us through the evening with all your favorite recording artists. It is our hope that we pack the place and make this summer dance one to remember — until the next one in August! The music starts at 8:30 p.m. and will continue nonstop until 11:30. Members are admitted free. Non-members can come for the fun for only $2.50 on this one. For information concerning the Youth Center and its activities please call us at 624-3285. We'd love to hear from you.

NUMBER ONE fund-raisers for All Saints' Day School in this year's "Human Race," were, from left: Jill Arnold, George Raggett, holding the plaque, and Jennifer Hays. Between them, they made $408 for the school program.

Bach parties

CONCERT MISTRESS Rosemary Waller chatted with Big Sur artist Emile Norman, who created the program cover for this year's Bach Festival. The two festival leaders were photographed at the opening night celebration for the annual festival.

CARMEL POLICE Officer Ken O'Donovan viewed the eight new names added to the Vietnam Memorial in Devendorf Park. O'Donovan had sought to have the names added so that all Monterey Peninsula veterans killed or missing in action could be listed on the local Vietnam Memorial to the Carmel dead. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Peninsula names added to Viet war memorial

THE LIST is short — but to their families, friends, and loved ones — it is far too long:

Rudolf Corona, 1967; John Sherman, 1970; James Vranes, 1969; Carlito Dorsey, 1966; Phillip Smith, 1969; James Plowman, 1967; William Underwood, 1968; and Richard White, 1969.

With the addition of those eight names, the Monterey Peninsula victims of American involvement in the Vietnam War have their own local memorial — in Carmel's Devendorf Park.

The Vietnam memorial, which is believed to be the only one of its kind on the peninsula, last year was relocated to Devendorf Park through the efforts of Carmel Police Officer Ken O'Donovan.

O'Donovan, a veteran of two tours in Vietnam, year succeeded in his efforts to have the memorial moved from its obscure location in the center island of Ocean Avenue near Lincoln Street.

With the help of the local American Legion Post 512 and city public works the memorial moved to the more suitable site in the northwestern section of Devendorf Park.

With the first-half of his task completed, O'Donovan began his next self-assignment — add the names of all the Monterey Peninsula residents to the memorial. In the past, only the names of Carmel dead graced the memorial.

Congressman Leon Panetta's office helped provide the information and the local American Legion agreed to adding the eight names of Monterey Peninusla area dead to the list.

The additions now rest along with the 10 original names of Carmel young men who died or are presumed dead:

John Arnn, 1965; Steve Hermanson, 1968; Mark Serram, 1968; Gary Arnold, 1968; Larry Larson, 1967; Peter Sherman, 1967; Richard Thomas, 1970; Frank DeAmaral Jr., 1967; Davic McGlochlin, 1968; and John Suydam, 1968.

"To the memory of Carmel's service men whose blood was shed that we might live," the inscription states.

Water district adopts budget of $2.3 million

Adoption of the 1985-86 budget, a resolution requesting Coastal Commission action on the proposed reclamation plant in Pebble Beach, and a go-ahead on a retrofit program for ultra-low-flush toilets highlighted the July 11 meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board.

The board adopted a $2.3 million budget which reserved more than $1.1 million for a down payment on the proposed San Clemente Dam or other water supply project approved by voters.

"Nearly $230,000 will be spent to complete the San Clemente EIR as well as subsequent negotiations and permit applications necessary before a vote," explained general manager Bruce Buel.

"Almost 90 percent of our program funds and significant staff time will be spent on the San Clemente Dam project as the board wants to bring this issue to a vote as soon as possible." The Carmel River Management Program is not affected as it is funded from user fees and benefit assessments. The Boronda Erosion Control Project is the major CRMP expenditure proposed this year.

In other business, the board passed a resolution requesting that the Coastal Commission require the Pebble Beach Community Services District to write a supplemental EIR comparing all reclamation alternatives for the Del Monte Forest before approving PBCSD's proposed sewer plant project. Both the Carmel Sanitary District and PBCSD have proposed projects.

The board also embraced the concept of a retrofit program for ultra-low-flush toilets. The district will form a professional committee to implement the program, which could reduce annual water consumption by 2 percent.

A passion for caviar

I MUST admit to a real passion for caviar — though I also must admit that it is a passion that I cannot indulge in too often. Katy Curry has put temptation in my path and I could be in trouble here. Caviar at breakfast sounds almost irresistable.

Where is this breakfast caviar? At the long-awaited Katy's Cottage on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Owner Curry said the restaurant "hopefully" will open in the first week of August. Breakfast, she said, will include a choice of caviar or English bangers.

If caviar and English bangers sound different from the fare at Curry's two other restaurants — The Wagon Wheel in Carmel Valley and Katy's Place on Mission Street in Carmel — it is no accident.

"This is the other side of Katy," Curry said. "This is creative cooking a la Katy. The menu and the atmosphere are totally different from my other places."

The breakfast menu includes eggs and smoked salmon, a choice of muffins, Italian fruit bread and "a couple of surprises," Curry said.

The lunch menu will have cold roast filet with a blue cheese topping, pasta salad of the day, hot and cold shrimp, Caesar salad, homemade desserts and will be served until at least 4 p.m. The Cottage will serve dinner only for private parties, she added.

Curry added a fireplace to the petite space that used to be Judy's Pantry and observed that the tiny kitchen would require her to be "very organized."

The secret for the success of her restaurants in a business that is notorious for failures, is that she "really cares," Curry said.

"I try to make everyone feel welcome like I do when I invite them to my home. I feel that is what I am doing — offering them my home.

"Too many people buy a restaurant and turn it over to someone else to run," Curry said. "That just does not work. You have to be involved and be there."

TOOLS ON WHEELS

Some people would argue that the delivery of beer is more important than the delivery of automotive tools. However, in one you are working for someone else and in the other it's all yours — including the problems.

After delivering beer on the peninsula for the past few years, Chris Wagner opted to test his own wings. He started Coast Counties Distributing, a tool distributorship for Usag Tools.

"Though it's a new company in the United States, it is 50 years old in Europe," Wagner said. "They build all the tools for the Ferrari factory and the Ferrari racing team."

All the tools have a lifetime guarantee, he said, and because of the strong dollar in Europe they can be bought here at a low price.

Wagner said he plans to cover all of the Monterey Peninsula, King City, Santa Cruz, Scotts Valley, Gilroy, Watsonville and "a little of Salinas" with his mobile tool shop.

"I want to sell to commercial as well as retail," he said. "I will sell to auto parts stores and other retail shops not just mechanics and automotive shops."

Wagner has more than just a passing familiarity with automobile tools.

"I built the body for the Ford Thunderbird used by a local racing team sponsored by Ford," Wagner said. "It is the only Thunderbird doing road racing."

Wagner said he started working on cars when he was 17 and restored a "beat up" 12 cylinder Jaguar. He said he still has the car and it won the restored class at the 1985 Car Capades in Monterey.

His work with cars both on the racing team and at home, Wagner said, gave him an understanding of which tool to use for a particular job.

"Just using the right tool with the right part is very important — just as much as the right nut with the right bolt," he said. "You can tear up what you are doing with the wrong tool."

MORE THAN MILK AT "OLD MILK HOUSE"

If you want to find the Iron Kettle, look in the "old milk house" in Carmel Valley Village on Carmel Valley Road. Where else would an iron kettle be?

The change in location for the restaurant from Delfino Place has turned out fine for soon-to-be owners Daniel and Kathleen Callinan, who are in the process of buying the restaurant from owner Donna Hamilton. The Callinan's have been serving up meals there since June.

"It turned out that the place in Delfino was too small for what I wanted to do," Daniel Callinan explained. The new location has three rooms while the former location had one.

"We are very happy with the new place," Kathy Callinan said. "It really was a milk house years ago and has a domed ceiling with a cupola, a beautiful garden and a veranda out front. People walk in and remark on how homey it is."

The restaurant, Callinan said, has been a dream of the couple's for years. They recently moved from San Francisco where he was a fund-raising counselor and real estate agent and she was a property manager.

The Callinans not only have expanded the restaurant space but the menu as well, and now the Iron Kettle serves dinner.

"We offer one entree a night," Callinan said. "The dinner includes a fresh vegetable basket with dip, soup, beverage and the main course, The menu will be posted around the Village."

"It is real homecooked American and Australian (Kathy Callinan comes from Sydney, Australia) food — pot roast, Australian chicken-in-the-basket — things like that."

For those who were regulars at the old Iron Kettle, Callinan said that they have retained Hamilton's lunch menu. It still includes quiche, pastines (turnover filled with cheese, beef, etc.), sandwiches, and homemade soup and chili. All dishes are served with fresh fruit and are "light on salt," Callinan said. "We are low-sodium conscious."

There are other touches that are the Callinans' own. One is Dan Callinan's Russian salad dressing handed down from his German grandmother. That's right — Russian dressing from a German grandmother. Actually, she was one-half English too, but that is another story.

Devonshire Tea is another Callinan introduction to the Iron Kettle. It consists of tea and a scone with whipped cream and jam. The closest thing to this type of scone in the United States, she said, is the soda biscuit.

"We want to cater to the local people the same as Donna had," Kathy Callinan said.

"Everyone here has been so supportive," Dan Callinan said.

NO MORE QUEUING AT POST OFFICE?

the post office, copier and bank line standing for them.

Desimone said she got the idea from her boyfriend, disc jockey Matthew Arnett, after he found one day that trying to finish all those chores plus his work was overwhelming.

"He said he was sitting there thinking, 'I wish I had someone to do these for me.' Then he said, 'Lori, have I got a business for you,' " Desimone said. The idea appealed to her.

"I was the office manager for Drs. Roger Shiffman and Jerome Rubin for the past seven years and enjoyed it when I went out to do errands," she said.

Desimone describes her business as a "personalized courier service" that will pick up and deliver mail, get copies done, make bank desposits and deliver small packages in town. She said she will perform these services for private citizens as well businesses and can be hired on a monthly or day-to-day basis.

Duplication of blueprints, which require a special copier, is included.

"I was at a copy place when an architect came in and needed copies of his plans," she said. "He was told that it would take 30 minutes and there he was, stuck there for a half hour."

Desimone said that she is working on getting a special rate at some of the copy places in town for people who use Carmel Express.

The banking side of the business will take some time to build-up, she said.

"People who know me know that I am honest," she said. "For those who do not, it will take some time to get their trust."

She is getting bonded, insured and taking the test to be a Notary Public, she added.

Carmel Express, Desimone said, will cover Carmel and and the "mouth of the Valley." Driving around the city is not the favorite activity of most people but Desimone said she sees no problem.

"I have lived here for the past eight years and know the village well," she said. "But I certainly will have to be organized."

MIXER MATCHES MORE MEMBERS

President Lois Lamar, the board of directors and the general membership of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, say a big thank you and kudos to Nick Lombardo, owner and manager of Rancho Canada Golf Club. On July 18, Lombardo hosted a mixer for current and new members of the chamber at Rancho Canada. The event raised the membership by at least 10 percent, Lamar said.

BACH AND BANK EQUALS $1,500

In Carmel, banking and Bach go well together. Robert Giraudo, manager of the Carmel branch of Monterey Savings, said he wanted the branch to become a part of "something as wonderful as the Bach Festival in a tangible fashion."

Giraudo donated $1,500 to the Bach Festival and offered the branch office for rehearsals during business hours.

"It was magic," Giraudo said about listening to the performances take shape.

"We wanted to show our appreciation to our customers and we wanted to demonstrate our support for the Carmel Bach Festival so we decided to open our office to rehearsal sessions on a trial basis," Giraudo explained. "The result was even more delightful than we had hoped, resulting in several 'mini-concerts' which were jewel-like in their beauty and execution.

"We intend to make this our annual gift to the many loyal Monterey Savings customers and the community at large. A pleasant benefit was the discovery by the musicians that our building has superb acoustics and lends itself to this exquisite music."

If you are wondering why you had not heard anything about the rehearsals, Giraudo explained that they "did not advertise the concerts this year because they were rehearsals and we did not want to place pressure on the musicians. The result was relaxed and totally spontaneous."

Will Monterey Savings do it again?

"I am already looking forward to next year," Giraudo. "We will announce those sessions to our customers."

BUTCHER SHOP REMODELING MOVES ALONG

The rather extensive-looking remodel on the Butcher Shop on Ocean Avenue — which looks like it was redecorated by the Fourth Bomber Squadron — won't last forever.

Dwyne Ostergard, director of marketing for Restaurant Central — which owns the Butcher Shop — assured me the eatery would reopen around October.

ROBERT GIRAUDO, manager of Monterey Savings, presented Jo Barton, president of the Bach Festival, with a $1,500 donation. Monterey Savings also allowed festival musicians to use its building as a rehearsal hall. (Michael Gardner photo.)

New sea otter census reports pups increase

The California Department of Fish and Game and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have announced results of a spring survey of California sea otters, conducted by state and federal biologists between April 22 and May 7.

Counts made during the survey revealed 1,360 otters, including 236 pups still dependent on their mothers. The survey area includes nearly all the 220-mile established coastal range of the California population, from Point Ano Nuevo in Santa Cruz County to the Santa Maria River in San Luis Obispo County, plus additional peripheral habitat. Due to an increase in pups counted, this spring's count was up slightly from 1984 when a total of 1,304 otters were counted.

Following is a comparison of the results of the spring surveys conducted since 1982 when the current aerial and ground counting method was inaugurated:

Year (Spring)	Independent Otters	Pups
1982	1,124	222
1983	1,131	120
1984	1,181	123
1985	124	236

No trends in the population, either up or down, are evident from survey data; however, the pup count this spring was the highest during the four-year period, as was the proportion of pups in the population.

It is not known why the number of pups counted was much lower between 1982 and this year, but severe weather during the winter of 1982-83 may have disrupted the usual pupping pattern and the latest count may reflect a return to more normal conditions.

Although sea otter pupping may occur during any month, the peak in California generally occurs during late winter and early spring. The survey is conducted by observers on shore, combined with observations from an aircraft in portions of the sea otters' range that are inaccessible from shore.

The California population of sea otters, once numbering up to 16,000 prior to the commercial fur trade of the 18th and 19th centuries, is protected under both state and federal laws. It is a "fully protected" mammal under the California Fish and Game Code and is listed as a "threatened" species under the Federal Endangered Species Act.

The sea otter is also protected under the Marine Mammal Protection Act. Thought to be nearly extinct in the early 1900s, a small surviving group of 30 to 50 otters was rediscovered in 1938 near Bixby Creek in Monterey County. With the conservation efforts of the state and federal governments and other interested groups, the population has grown to its present level. A Sea Otter Reserve was established by the state in 1941 and extended in 1959 to include the nearshore area between the Carmel River and Cambria to provide further protection for the otters.

Although little or no population growth has occurred for at least the past decade and is still far below historical levels, state and federal authorities are encouraged that the California population is continuing to stage a comeback.

CARMEL BY ITSELF

Carmel Countess dies at age 80

Claude, Countess of Kinnoull, whose accomplishments as an artist, writer and animal lover gave little hint of her adventures across Africa and in European espionage before the outbreak of World War II, died Sunday at her Carmel home following a lengthy illness. She was 80.

Born Oct. 20, 1904, to one of Britain's wealthiest families, Lady Kinnoull was a lifelong anti-Communist activist, a personal friend of Spain's Francisco Franco and a supporter of the traditionalist wing of the Roman Catholic Church.

On the peninsula, where she made her home for the past 45 years, she was a major benefactor of the Monterey County SPCA and an early supporter of the Monterey Institute of International Studies.

She was the granddaughter of Sir Frederick Wills, a founder of the Imperial Group, one of the world's major tobacco companies with holdings that also include the Howard Johnson restaurant and motel chain the United States.

Married at the end of World War I to the Earl of Kinnoull, she acquired the title countess and a small castle in Scotland. The marriage ended after the death of their infant son. She competed in world class sports car racing events during her marriage, and later returned to racing after a hiatus.

Lady Kinnoull converted to Catholicism and embarked in 1931 on a journey to visit Catholic missions throughout Africa, bringing medical supplies and filming the adventure along the way.

Traveling by truck in the company of her priest-godfather Monsignor Vincent de Moor, they went from Egypt to South Africa and back to Algeria, stopping at 112 Catholic missions along the way.

She later published an account of the trip, one of several books she wrote in her life.

Lady Kinnoull moved to Paris where she founded and directed a hospice for the poor and dying. During this time, she also edited her African films and played the lead in a spy movie.

Her interest in art led her to Spain as a student and friend of artist Ignatio Zuloaga.

In Spain, she became an early financial supporter of Generalissimo Franco and the Monarchist movement during the Spanish Civil War, working with the Monarchist secret service and also filming press reports and photographs while traveling with Franco's army.

Her theatrical role in espionage became reality just before the outbreak of World War II, as Lady Kinnoull worked with the British and French secret services to uncover Communist agents.

As the Germans invaded France, she ruled out escape to England because of the six month quarantine her dog would have had to face. Instead, she used her relationship with Franco to win passage in 1940 for herself, Monsignor de Moor and her pet to the United States. She settled in Carmel shortly afterward after reading that it was a colony of artists and writers.

Locally, she painted portraits of many of the peninsula's prominent residents and donated her works to area churches and charities.

While continuing her career as an artist, Lady Kinnoull also devoted much of her time on the Peninsula to animal welfare activities.

She joined the board of the Monterey County SPCA in 1949 and later served as its vice president. For many years she edited the society's quarterly bulletin. Her financial contributions helped support its activities and assisted with purchase of the large property on the Monterey-Salinas Highway now owned by the society.

Lady Kinnoull later contributed to the Animal Welfare and Assistance Association.

She also maintained a visible and vocal interest in Carmel and was a frequent critic at public meetings of attempts to commercialize the town.

Active as a traditionalist in the Roman Catholic church, she gave personal and financial support following the Second Vatican Council to French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, who has clashed with the church hierarchy over reforms in the Mass and other church practices.

Archbishop Lefebvre visited her during her final illness.

For her many political, humanitarian and church-related activities, Lady Kinnoull was honored during her life as a knight of the French Legion of Honor, by Belgium's King Leopold as a commander of the Royal Order of the Lion of the Congo, by Spain as a knight of the Order of Isable the Catholic and by Pope Pius XI with the Cross Pro Ecclesie et Pontifica and as a Dame of the Holy Sepulcher.

She has been a member of the Third Order of Discalced Carmelites for more than 50 years, and was a member of the Society of Western Artists, the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, the Tor House Foundation and many other local charities.

She has no immediate surviving relatives.

Rosary will b recited Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Mission Mortuary.

A memorial service is planned Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Carmelite Monastery south of Carmel. Burial will follow at San Carlos cemetery.

Memorial contributions to the Carmelite Monastery are suggested.

Elizabeth Roberts

Memorial services and cremation have taken place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for Elizabeth Ann Roberts of Carmel, who died July 12 at Community Hospital. She was 81.

Born April 6, 1904 in Tacoma, Wash., she moved to Carmel 10 years ago from Los Angeles. She was a member of St. James Episcopal Church in Los Angeles.

Survivors include two nieces, Melissa Holmes of Woodinville, Wash., and JoAnne Roberts of Tacoma, Wash.

Inurnment was scheduled to take place at Christ Episcopal Church in Tacoma. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

Memorial contributions may be made to the donor's favorite charity.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

What is a fever? We all learned long ago that a body temperature exceeding 98.6° F. was a fever, but recent studies have shown that, in the case of older persons, that may not be an accurate standard. A recent survey by the University of New Mexico's School of Nursing of healthy adults between the ages of 65 and 90 showed an average body temperature of 97.7°. Geriatric nursing researcher Patricia Higgins says that the lower average body temperature of older people should be considered when administering health care. A temperature elevation to 98.6° or above, particularly in persons over age 75, she says, should be regarded as a signal to look for other symptoms.

What is the fastest-growing age group in the United States? It's citizens over the age of 85. According to the U.S. Bureau of the Census, from 1960 to 1980 the number of people over 85 increased by 141 percent. Studies by the University of Pennsylvania indicate that the most important reason has been a sharp drop in deaths from heart disease.

SERRA BICENTENNIAL

BY MSGR. FRANCES WEBER

'Presidente' laid to rest

THE SOLEMN funeral of Fray Junipero Serra took place at San Carlos on Sunday morning, Aug. 29, 1784. Representatives of all the elements of the friar's diversified life participated at the ceremonies.

Among the mourners were the 600 Indian converts living at the mission, the mission guard, the men from the presidio, the officers and most of the crew of the San Carlos. Europe, North and South America; Mallorca, Mexico, Baja California and the Sierra Gorda; the army and the navy, the professions and the artisans and the toilers; all were represented.

There were Indians who had come from practically every rancheria in the area of Carmel. During the 14 years of established mission life at San Carlos, Serra and his co-workers had extended their evangelizing efforts nearly 30 miles south, 20 miles north and 20 miles east of the actual mission.

One of the mourners was Bernardino de Jesus Fages, the very first one Serra had baptized in California, on Dec. 26, 1770, and now one of the fiscales of the mission.

Throughout the day, at half-hour intervals, a cannon shot was fired from the San Carlos and answered by a volley from the cannons of the presidio. The reverberations were heard in Carmel Valley. The doble of the mission bells and the firing of the cannons "melted the hearts of all," according to Fray Francisco Palou.

Within the crowded church, a vigil was solemnly kept, followed by a solemn requiem Mass. It was celebrated by Palou. The Indian choir provided the music and army and naval officers held lighted candles. Interestingly, there is no mention of a homily. Serra's life was its own homily; perhaps that was recognized even then.

Burial was deferred until afternoon. Meanwhile, some of the people remained in the church, viewing the remains, praying and touching them with their medals and rosaries.

At 4 p.m., the bells called all the people together again. A procession was formed. The officers alternated bearing on their shoulders the remains of the presidente.

The procession was in the courtyard or patio of the mission enclosure. Four stops were made during its course, during which a response was sung. The procession then re-entered the church and the bearers placed the coffin on a table at the foot of the altar.

The open grave was blessed and incensed. The last prayers were said and the mortal remains of Fray Junipero Serra were lowered into the opening in the sanctuary floor, close to those of Fray Juan Crespi.

Another response was sung, "the tears, sighs and cries of those assisting drowning out the voices of the chanters." Then the congregation dispersed. Seventy laborious years were a part of history.

When Palou gave one of Serra's handkerchiefs to Dr. Juan Garcia, the royal physician, the doctor said "with this little cloth, I expect to effect more cures than with all my books and pharmacy."

TWENTY PERCENT OPINION

BY DAVID MARADEI
CARMEL CITY COUNCILMAN

'We've paving our paradise'

IN APRIL, an editor for the Monterey Peninsula Herald wrote: "traffic congestion is already a fact of life on the peninsula and there is no indication the Spanish Bay project will singularly aggravate the situation to the point of strangulation."

There probably are a lot of good reasons to support the Spanish Bay resort. It is going to generate a lot of revenue for the county in the room tax, it will supply a short term boost to the construction market, and it will certainly attract an affluent tourist.

I believe the resort is not well planned and I believe that it borders on a violation of the California Environmental Quality Act by ignoring the traffic and circulation problems it will create.

The position of the Herald, an ardent supporter of the resort, is a classic case of "doublethink." The paper joins forces with the Pebble Beach Co. to tell us that peninsula traffic is so bad that Spanish Bay should be allowed to build to their desired density.

This is certainly not clear thinking and the failure to think clearly results in planning disasters.

The reality of Spanish Bay is that Pacific Grove and New Monterey are in a vulnerable position prior to the new hotel. On any given day when a popular peninsula event such as a golf tournament, a Laguna Seca race, a dog show, a Concourse, a busy Sunday at the aquarium, or simply a holiday weekend occurs, Highway 68 has the potential of backing up in bumper-to-bumper traffic from David Avenue to Highway 1. At one time or another, probably each of us has experienced that traffic quagmire.

The danger to visitors and residents comes when you understand that Highway 68 is the main access road to the only major medical emergency room on the peninsula, Community Hospital.

Accidents and illnesses requiring emergency treatment do not wait to occur until the traffic congestion has eased. The building of Spanish Bay without expansion of Highway 68 to four lanes is a serious, potentially life-threatening blunder by both Monterey County and the Pebble Beach Co.

I am sure that the Pebble Beach Co. is concerned about this issue. They could have best demonstrated this concern by doing the proper planning and by making sure the basic health and safety issues were addressed.

Right now there are two task forces studying the problem of Highway 68. Neither has the power to enforce the results of their studies. The end result will be a compromise between what Pebble Beach Co. will be willing to pay and what the task forces demand of them. This is the point: a major change in Highway 68 will require planning and an environmental impact report in itself. The very establishment of the two task forces should tell you that the original traffic studies and mitigations done by the county are completely inadequate.

•

SO WE ARE stuck. It is within the power of the board of supervisors to take another look at the project based on the access problem to the emergency room. They have indicated they are unwilling to reopen the Spanish Bay issue on this subject.

When the city of Carmel lawsuit was originally filed with the cities of Monterey and Pacific Grove we sought a settlement which was rejected by the new county board of supervisors. All we asked was that they take a look at the traffic and circulation element of the EIR.

If they found it deficient, they would have to correct it. If they found it adequate, we would accept that. The lawsuit would have been dropped. The county refused a reasonable settlement of the suit. They will not reopen this project.

There are good reasons for the county to refuse to take another look at the project. The board probably would get sued by Pebble Beach Co. There is an equally good reason for the Pebble Beach Co. to not want the traffic and circulation element reopened. If it was evaluated today with the knowledge that the public has and with the existing traffic figures, chances are that the Spanish Bay resort would not be allowed.

The EIR traffic studies were completed before November of 1983, a full year before the opening of the Monterey Bay Aquarium. None of the 1,000-plus hotel rooms currently being built in Monterey were considered in the EIR. The new condominium development in Pacific Grove was not considered.

The 5,000 additional units being constructed at the Defense Language Institute were not considered. The intense growth of small business to support the cannery and the aquarium were not considered. Each of these developments evaluated singularly might not have a significant impact on the peninsula traffic.

If you use the California Environmental Quality Act as a guide for planning — which we must use by law — you will note that we have an obligation to examine not just the individual impacts of projects, but the cumulative impacts as well.

•

LAST WEEK, the Pebble Beach Co. received its first permits to begin breaking ground. The inevitability of Spanish Bay is apparent. The Herald will document the project positively and profusely. Once again you and I will watch as dollars dominate common sense and good management.

If I sound angry about this, I am.

There is an arrogance in the way this project has been rammed through the planning process. The representatives of the corporation speak of it as a restoration of a fallen environment. It is a wonderful new golf course. There will be improved access to the beach. There will be reforestation. It will provide jobs.

Of course, the majority of the jobs will be on the low end of the wage scale. The condominiums might be time share. Housing on the Monterey Peninsula is tight and expensive. Rents are simply unaffordable. The traffic problems by the visitors, the tourists, the sightseers, the employees, the service trucks and other support vehicles will negatively impact our lives. Those are the things they don't talk about.

There is good reason they do not talk about those things. If the public has full knowledge of the impacts of Spanish Bay, they would not allow one tree to be removed to make way for this four-story project which has as its goal the profits of the major corporation or hotel chain currently controlling the stock of Pebble Beach.

At the Coastal Commission hearing in San Francisco I asked Tom Oliver about the concerns the city had with his project. In response he asked me a question: "What have you got against success?"

At what price, Tom? "We are paving over paradise and putting in a parking lot."

Mr. Polyester encounters computer chic

By MICHAEL GARDNER

I DON'T spend a whole lot of time admiring the mirror except for the obligatory every other day shave.

As a matter of fact, I sported the Cyndi Lauper look (which really is nothing new, only the name has been changed from "early Salvation Army") long before the pop singer inspired the fad that has displaced the Dynasty line of designer fashions as the latest chic.

So it was with a little apprehension that I, in mismatched light blue polyester pants (bought while Lauper was still in high school) and dark blue shirt (a gift from Sears), found myself down at "Collage," a boutique in the Barnyard at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The assignment is to check out the latest computer whiz, which, for 45 bucks a dot matrix printout, will give advice on how to dress, and for women, what kinds of makeup to wear and the best fragrances depending on your mood.

I decided to approach the situation cautiously, especially seeing as how I'm still skeptical about HUMAN color analysis. I have that right considering we're talking about a guy who has had more than one run-in with the fashion industry.

After all, we're talking a man who still wears polyester; refuses to get his ears pierced, and sometimes makes plaid-slacked golfers look like they belong on the best dressed lists.

Outside Collage, I skewered my courage and prayed that co-owners Tina Prewarski and Lois Hayman wouldn't laugh and race for the sunglasses when I walked in. They didn't. Neither did Donna Cerrito, who was to be my consultant.

Lois chitchatted for awhile about the system, the first on the Monterey Peninsula, she says. My palms stopped sweating as I began to feel more at ease.

Colors, Lois explained, project a certain image and sometimes an unwanted perception is given.

For example, many women in the professional ranks stick to very business-like navy blue suits. But for some, that color makes them appear "very cold and calculating" an image they may not want to project.

Sometimes women also fall into the trap of liking a certain style and they spend $100 on the dress.

"But when they wear it, it doesn't seem comfortable. It's not the style. It's the color. The color is not you," Lois said.

The right clothes and right colors also help build esteem and confidence, she believes.

"It definitely has an effect on how you feel about yourself," I was told.

•

MEN ALSO are becoming more fashion conscious and have broken the yoke of gray, blue and brown suits.

But most of us are not Ralph Lauren or Yves St. Laurent, so we need help in designing a wardrobe with just the right colors.

'I decided to approach the situation cautiously, especially seeing as how I'm still skeptical about HUMAN color analysis. I have the right considering we're talking about a guy who has had more than one run-in with the fashion industry.'

I mean, I like purple and red together, but what would Joan Collins think?

That's where the computer comes in.

This particular computer is designed by a Sunnyvale-based company that calls itself "I'RO" and Collage serves as the local headquarters.

At first glance the computer doesn't seem to be any different than most others. It has a 64K memory, dual disk drive, format keys, floppy disks and an accompanying printer.

Donna, who is available by appointment, smiles and comes over and sits next to me. She punches in data, such as hair and eye color, height and weight.

I lied about my weight, but who doesn't?

Donna takes out a contraption resembling the body of an electric razor without the blades and "scans" my palm, neck and hair.

"What this does is picks up and measures all the blues, reds, greens and yellows. With that information it puts you in one of four categories," Donna explains. "It reads undertones of the skin that the eye cannot see."

I turn out to be "a cool one," according to the machine. Of course it meant skin type, and not a description more befitting James Dean. Rats.

In the space of seven minutes the computer has printed out its one-page advice to me. Dear Abby, it ain't, but the response is rather interesting:

"Based on your skin, eye, hair color, the I'RO computer has determined the following are your best universal colors. Choose these colors to complement your environment, use them for your car, clothing, home decor, and office. Have fun!"

My colors, the machine advises, are: dusty red, light strawberry, dusty blue and mauve blue colors.

The printout continues with a chart that details the best colors for my suit, shirt, jacket, tie, slacks and sweater. (I didn't tell the computer that I don't own a suit and all my ties are the clip-on variety.)

The chart arranges my outfits by color and image I want to project, whether it is "business, sporty or casual."

I also wear gold wire-frame glasses. The computer tells me I'd be better off with silver. I do wear a silver ID bracelet, which is okay in the machine's book. I'm also told never to wear amber. I don't and won't. I promise. Honest.

•

AND IF you're a woman, the printout will tell you the best makeup to wear and fragrances, depending on which mood you're in: exotic, romantic, earthy, classic or sporty.

After the printout is completed, Donna provides a personal color palette for "cool one," which gives examples of the right colors so you can match them when shopping.

The works also includes an I'RO "Complete Beauty Guide" and "Fashion Guide," two booklets designed to bring out the best in you.

Now for the big question — does it work?

In my case, I must say, yes. Before coming to Collage, I always seemed to like the cool colors, sort-of brown, and blue. The computer confirmed those are my best colors, including the burgundy, which I never wore until my girfriend bought me a pair of burgundy sweat pants for summer. She loves them and so do I.

So if you see someone in the Salvation Army Store or second-hand thrift shop holding a computer printout, color palette and fashion guide, it's yours truly.

Of course, you may want to go to Collage or another fine store for your clothes.

Festival lauds birthday composers

By JO ANN LA TORRA

Week One

THE CARMEL Bach Festival is very dear to Carmel; that it is in its 48th year, celebrating J.S. Bach's 300th birthday, is a clear indication of its popularity. It has expanded into a three-week festival (actually one week, repeated twice). For the past 30 years, it has been directed by Sandor Salgo, assisted by his wife, Priscilla.

Works by composers other than Sebastian Bach have always been presented. This year, however, is truly a banner year, being also the 300th birthday of two of Bach's greatest contemporaries, Handel and Scarlatti, and the 400th birthday of one of the greatest German composers of the early baroque, Heinrich Schuetz.

Immersing in the music of one composer or period is a wonderful experience. One's perspective begins to change and widen on account of this density in a way which cannot happen with occasional hearings. Live performances, of course, are to be preferred. Even the most devoted of us tend to interrupt a recording to answer the telephone.

Festivals, therefore, serve an important function in our musical life.

This is not a festival for Bach purists, nor does it profess to be. It is, rather, Maestro Salgo's tribute to a composer and period he clearly loves.

Only in the use of the harpsichord and small organ is there a nod to the past in terms of instruments. In the First Brandenburg Concerto, the violino piccolo part is played on ordinary violin; flutes, instead of recorders, are used in the Fourth.

Personally, I prefer the timbres of the originals, but these are neither unusual nor objectionable substitutes. Nor is the use of valve trumpet for the Second, since there are apparently only two players in the world who can play that part on the original instrument, the clarino trumpet. (Pablo Caslas used soprano saxophone!) This substitution is also used in Cantata 51.

The harpsichord then is at a serious disadvantage. Its reasonably period sound is no match for the modern instruments, given the amount of vibrato now in common use. Unfortunately, this is giving some people (I know this because I eavesdrop) the impression that the harpsichord is not a solo instrument. This is patently untrue. Heard with properly balanced period instruments, the sound of the harpsichord is perfect, and it assumes its rightful role.

Importing Judith Davidoff and Frank Traficante to play violas da gamba was a better idea visually than aurally. The wonderful, sweet sound of the viols cannot be heard in the midst of the modern strings. Even when they have solo passages, they are hard to hear because the ear is so attuned to the louder sounds. But they do look nice.

In a curious reversal, harpsichord was used instead of piano in song settings by Haydn on one of the morning recitals. These are late works of Haydn, post-dating his visits to London, and he had long since given up the harpsichord. For many works of this era, the keyboard instrument used is not unduly important, but these descriptive accompaniments are preferred on piano.

Reviewing the musicologists' contributions may seem unusual but, make no mistake, lecturing is a performing art. Besides that, they get high marks for imparting solid information in a palpable, even entertaining manner. Only rarely was there excessive pedantry or an attitude of talking down.

•

THE OPENING concert on Monday, July 15 got off to a rousing start with Bach's magnificent Magnificat.

Vivaldi's B minor concerto for four violins, and Bach's reworking of it for four harpsichords, followed. Unfortunately, the harpsichords could scarcely be heard above the orchestra, so it was difficult to follow closely Bach's approach to this typically baroque style of transcription.

Cantata 50, "Nun ist das Heil...", for chorus and orchestra, provided an upbeat finale.

Tuesday evening featured the complete Brandenburg concertos. This is perhaps a bit much for one evening, wonderful as they are. The mind becomes wearied. Unlike similar works of slightly lesser composers, they command one's full attention. Much of this type of baroque music is truly dinner music — Telemann's "Tafelmusic," for example. One can listen to it indefinitely. But Old Bach couldn't help writing great music, it seems, and this always demands more from the listener.

The spectacular at the Carmel Mission Basilica on Wednesday, July 17 also suffered from excessive length. Add to that no intermission and the uncomfortable pews in the mission. However, it was a treat to hear the Schuetz works. The polychoral works in this setting give one at least an inkling of what it must have been like in a more massive church, even perhaps at San Marco in Venice.

Tenor trombones would have been better in "Fili mi, Absalom," given that four sackbut players probably weren't readily available. The bass trombones' sound, beautiful as it is, is a bit heavy for the music.

Bach's popular Cantata 51 was well done by soprano Sylvia McNair and trumpeter Carole Klein. Some sopranos opt for caution in the fast movements, but it is a mistake. Better to miss some of the high notes and be faithful to the spirit of the music ("Praise God in all lands," and "Alleluia"). Besides, McNair didn't miss the high notes.

The eccentric placing of the soprano in the pulpit instead of next to the trumpet made the ensemble more difficult than it needed to be. Bass Douglas Lawrence was also in the pulpit for the Schuetz Sacred Symphony, but Schuetz works better as spatial music than Bach does.

Saturday night's concert featured two concertos, the delightful E major of Bach, and K. 503 of Mozart, and two cantatas of Bach.

Cantata 106, "Gottes Zeit ist die allerbeste Zeit," was nicely done. But it was one of the wedding cantatas, No. 202, "Weichet nur, betruebte Schatten," that highlighted the evening, and much of the credit goes to Sylvia McNair. She didn't just sing the cantata, she presented it. Since this is a celebratory cantata, there is no particular reason to sing/play it in a constrained manner. I could have done without the little non-gavotte at the end, but that is a minor complaint.

McNair's vocal technique is so secure that she makes it look easy; furthermore, she enjoys it and this crosses the footlights. Although it is not a straight voice, the vibrato is small and tight, and not objectionable for baroque music.

She received capable assistance from oboist Michael Rosenberg and bassoonist Jesse Read.

Igor Kipnis presented a very entertaining solo harpsichord concert the evening of Thursday, July 18. The first half was devoted to Handel and Bach, the highlight being the magnificent A minor Fantasy and Fugue by Bach. The extroverted reading of Handel's popular Fifth Suite, with the "Harmonious Blacksmith" variations was delightful.

The second half of the program was devoted to Scarlatti, just about the only Scarlatti we will get during the festival. He did write some vocal work, but no one seems interested in reviving it. The sonatas were chosen to demonstrate Scarlatti's various physical demands on the players, the most obvious being the cross-hand work.

Kipnis broke up the playing with comments on the music, demonstrating that it is possible to know a lot of facts about the music and still play it well.

Ken Ahrens, one of the few locals involved in the festival, presented a solo organ recital on Friday afternoon. Beautifully played on the lovely baroque organ at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Monterey, the entire concert was devoted to works of Bach.

It's 'bring your own lantern' to P.G. feast

THE 80TH anniversary of the Feast of Lanterns celebration will transform Pacific Grove into a pageant of street dancing, fireworks and food booths.

Feast of Lanterns events continue through Saturday, and this year also serve as birthday party festivities marking the 110th year of the founding of the City of Pacific Grove.

The celebration was begun in the late 1800s with the formation of Pacific Grove as a seaside Christian resort by Methodist-Episcopal church members from San Francisco. Named after the Pacific Ocean and the groves of pine and oak trees, Pacific Grove was established June 1, 1875 as a site for religious retreats.

In 1879 the Chautauqua Assembly was organized. This assembly, named after a religious retreat at Lake Chautauqua, New York, presented lectures, entertainment and cultural activities.

The New York retreat used lanterns to rim the shoreline of Lake Chautauqua so that the local farmers would know that the Methodists had arrived for a retreat and would need produce. The Lake Chautauqua Retreat also used lanterns and fireworks to close their camping and lecture season.

In 1905 the Methodist's and Women's Civic Club of Pacific Grove organized a celebration for the close of the Chautauqua Assembly.

This year, the remaining schedule of Feast of Lanterns events is as follows:

Thursday, July 25

- Feast of Salads Buffet: 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Masonic Hall, Lighthouse and Congress, Pacific Grove. Admission: $3.

Friday, July 26

- Pet parade: 2:30 p.m. at Caledonia Park, Central and Congress, Pacific Grove.
- Street dancing: Folk, country-western, Greek and ballroom styles will be demonstrated, 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., Lighthouse and Congress, pacific Grove. Admission is free.

Saturday, July 27

- Free entertainment: 2:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Lovers Point Pier.
- Chicken barbecue: 2:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Lovers Point Park. Meals are $5.
- Tug-of-war: 4:30 p.m. at Lovers Point Beach.
- Candlelight Lantern Procession: 7:15 p.m. on 13th Street at the Promenade. Bring your own lanterns and follow the dragon to Lovers Point.
- Pageant: 8 p.m., Lovers Point Pier, followed by ground fireworks.
- Coronation ball: 9:30 p.m. to midnight at Pacific Grove High School, 615 Sunset. Top 40s and oldies music will be provided by Kevin Harris.

For additional information about the Feast of Lanterns, call 372-1160.

Both films will be offered to the public at a showing scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 9, on the Monterey Peninsula College campus, Lecture Forum 103. Tickets are $3 at the door.

The public is invited to all meetings and events of the group. Call 649-8809, or write to Friends of C.G. Jung, 853 Pacific St., Monterey for any further information needed.

THEATER REVIEW
BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

'Grease' — exuberant staging, unsatisfying plot

THE WESTERN Stage at Hartnell College currently rocks with an exuberant production of Grease directed and choreographed by Lorenzo Aragon. Grease has considerable strengths, among them a pre-Peter Max setting designed by Alex W. Hutton that features a Brobdingnagian Chevy fender, bigger-than-life record platters and a huge cartoon face of Marilyn Monroe.

The fender is an inspired choice, for the teenaged boys scale it and slide down it, creating the illusion of alleys and streets where none are present, and the band, visible above the stage, appears to hang in the forefront of everybody's consciousness, not unlike the way the music did in the world of the '50s teenager.

The band itself is outrageous, strong in every element and well balanced, with David Sanford's yakkity sax and Don Dally's lead guitar recreating some of rock 'n roll's finer moments. But on opening night, there were problems with the sound system that give the singers, using hand mikes, the unfortunate task of trying to shout down the likewise amplified band. This sort of problem should be easy to fix, for both singers and band are well tuned and talented.

The only problem with Grease is the book itself, which emerges as a cynical nontreatment of the central plight of every teenager's social life: what do you do when people don't accept you as you are? Do you chuck your values and join them, or tough it out? Grease presents the plight in detail, then jettisons the human dignity of it. So see it for the music and fine performances by a talented and well rehearsed cast; just don't expect more.

Grease offers a score that captures the flavor and style of '50s music perfectly and adds interest through playful lyrics that parody the '50s themes. "Freddy My Love," for example, offers a concise musical lesson in how to manipulate an overseas boyfriend. "Mooning" mischieviously parodies the sentimental lyrics of many a '50s ballad and is authentically and rockingly sung by Allan Chambers. Scott Quintard does incredible things with "Alone at a Drive-In Movie," backed up by a chorus of trench-coat clad ghouls.

There are no inept performances and many fine ones. The chorus of bobby-soxer girls and greaser boys is well rehearsed and lively, and among the lead singers Tony Mandle ("Those Magic Changes") and David Carey ("Born to Hand-Jive" and "Beauty School Dropout") stand out. Dramatically, Joy Camp is strong as a brassy tough girl, and Susan Thompson brings a Bette Midler appeal mixed with a southern accent to her portrayal of Frenchy, the high school dropout trying to find a future.

Not much of a book, but Grease offers a lot of joyful action and some great musical moments. One nagging question: why would the plot feature a dance called the hand-jive, then show the entire cast dancing everything but the hand-jive? But the American music does not thrive on such questions, and the music makes up for the inconsistency.

Fast food fix

JAN (Velvali Huston) and Roger (Allan Chambers) take a break from the usual '50s staple of burgers and fries in a scene from Grease. The rock 'n roll musical joins the season at The Western Stage of Hartnell College in Salinas.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION
BY JANE WILGRESS

Christmas in July

HERE WE go again! It's time for our annual benefit rummage sale, an event which is rather dreaded around here and yet always proves to be enjoyable, chiefly because our customers show so much goodwill. This year's sale is scheduled this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, July 27-28. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Sunday.

From past years, I have a mental picture of Dan Gotch amiably leaning on the inside of the gate to Cherry Hall while our patient buyers lean from the street side waiting for the doors to open (we're always punctual). I also have comedy recollections of trips Dan and I made in my ancient pickup, lurching across Ocean Avenue with loads of rummage donations swaying around in the back — buckets, a hat stand, garden tools and an incredible collection of domestic paraphernalia including a kitchen sink.

Sales have their own curious mystique. They seem to bring out the best and the worst in people. Personally, I dislike the kind where the salespeople are so busy yakking among themselves that you, the customer, might as well not exist. I also dislike those at which goods are not priced, and when you ask about prices the salespeople do not agree. For a generally cheerful atmosphere and for marvelous bargains, I think the sale at All Saints' Episcopal Shuch rates highest marks around Carmel.

Many years ago my young son, intrigued by his English grandmother's allusion to "jumble" sales instead of "rummage," decided that any really good sale should be called a Rumble and those not up to his standard a Jummage. We aim to provide you with a Rumble this weekend! We will be offering a collection of ashtrays which can truly be described as international in scope — and enough Christmas decoration for the entire town.

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

'Romeo and Juliet' caps TheatreFest events

GROVEMONT COMMUNITY Theatre's TheatreFest '85 brings some new faces and talents to this expanded summer-long weekend event at the Custom House Plaza in Monterey.

The free theatrical events include Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, The Three Musketeers and two Human Chess Games, all of which are performed in the open plaza amidst food and drink concessions, a good environment for random sampling in the most relaxed way.

Capping off the TheatreFest is a solid and meticulous production of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, an action-packed play that boasts some of Shakespeare's most dizzyingly elegant poetry, an unforgettable messenger character, and a compelling plot: an adolescent street war combines with a generations-old family feud to result in unavoidable, poignant tragedy.

Director Rosamond Goodrich Zanides' choice of Spanish Californian costuming works perfectly with the Memory Garden setting behind Pacific House, not just in appearance, but in theme, for this irresistible story of passion out-of-bounds wears Spanish dress well. Tibalt's hot-headedness gains something from his dashing black-clad appearance; Juliet's girlish innocence is enhanced by her frilly, pastel clothing and the anonymous appearance of more than one duenna on the stage.

The garden setting offers other unique charms: the actors' entrances and exits are varied, the street fights gain strength from the terrain (benches, trees and flower beds), and Romeo has a genuine balcony to scale. Director and cast have made maximum use of this rare opportunity to stage Shakespeare in an unconfined setting, and because the garden is walled in, most of the lines are audible.

Pamela Tomassetti's Juliet does the music of Shakespeare's lyric lines poetic justice, and her characterization of the sheltered young girl scaling the heights of passion for the very first time is always believable and sometimes enchanting.

Stephen Moorer's Romeo is a good match for her. Both in appearance and performance, he manages the emotional range and physical business of the role very well.

Shakespeare's durability on the modern stage stems in part from his genius for keeping the audience well diverted, not just with dazzling lines, but with minor characters who are essential to the plot and unforgettably individualized.

Mercutio and Juliet's Nurse are good examples. Mercutio, Romeo's swashbuckling friend with a delicious way with words, is brought fully to life by David Miller, whose diction, expression, and swordplay (lefthanded) leave nothing to be desired. As the Nurse, Mindy Stock has the timing and comic instinct necessary to this pivotal role that brings comic balance to an otherwise heavy tale of woe indeed.

In small roles, Thomas R. Sanchez's Tibalt is fine as the fire-spitting Capulet with a lust for Montague blood; Kevin Hanstick is an energetic presence as Benvolio, and Alan Smith and Gina Welch are convincing as the well-intentioned senior Capulets, unwittingly plummeting their daughter toward tragedy.

Lively swordplay and spirited love scenes punctuate this classic play, and the TheatreFest's informal seating and open-air setting make this event accessible to everyone. Romeo and Juliet is a fitting culmination to a day of outdoor theater. Don't miss it.

It focuses on eight survivors of the late '60s who find themselves deeply moved by Jonah. The film is in French with subtitles.

Screened Wednesday, July 31 is Luis Bunuel's Death in the Garden. Simone Signoret and Michel Piccoli co-star in this 1956 release about a group of characters who make a pilgrim's progress through the African jungles. It is shown in French with subtitles.

All films begin at 8:15 p.m. in Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Tickets are $3.50 general, $2.75 students and seniors, $2 for film society members. For details, call 659-4795 between 5 p.m. and show time.

Fund-raiser offers 'Trip to Paradise'

The Family Resource Center, designated provider of child abuse prevention services for Monterey County, is sponsoring a "Win a Trip to Paradise for Two" fund-raiser.

Grand prize is a trip for two to Honolulu, Hawaii, including roundtrip airfare and five nights' lodging.

The drawing will take place at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 9 at the Monterey Sheraton. Tickets are $10 each and are available at the Family Resource Center offices in Seaside and Salinas.

Tickets are tax-deductible. Funds raised will help defray operating costs for the Family Resource Center child abuse prevention and treatment services. To reserve tickets, call 394-4622.

Harpsichordist to appear

RECORDING ARTIST Igor Kipnis, Carmel Bach Festival soloist, will visit Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard to meet with friends and fans on Sunday, July 28. Kipnis will autograph records and tapes from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. At 7:30 p.m. Kipnis will perform a 30-minute concert which will be broadcast over radio station KBOQ. The program will include works by tercentenary celebration composers Bach, Handel and Scarlatti. Admission is free. For details, call 625-1229.

Soprano leads Bach master class

This season's Carmel Bach Festival master class will be open to the public at 2 p.m. Friday, July 26 in the Fellowship Hall at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and Seventh, Carmel.

This master class with Sylvia McNair, soprano, is the first to be sponsored by the Virginia Best Adams Master Class Endowment Fund, established in 1984 by the family and friends of Virginia Best Adams in celebration of her 80th birthday. During the classes, McNair will teach young emerging professional singers in baroque performance style and techniques.

Sylvia McNair has appeared as Pamina in Mozart's The Magic Flute, and the title role of Ophelia for the Deutsche Oper Berlin. With the Opera Theatre of St. Louis she returns as Ilia in Idomeneo, and this season makes her Carnegie Hall debut in a concert performance of Handel's Semele. Other engagements during the 1985 season include performances with the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Honolulu and San Francisco symphonies, the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Moss Landing antique show set

The site chosen in 1853 by Captain Charles Moss as a ferry crossing will draw antique dealers, collectors and bargain browsers on Sunday, July 28.

The occasion is the 15th annual Moss Landing flea market and antique sale, to take place 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the fishing port on Monterey Bay.

The event is expected to resemble an outdoor street fair. Hundreds of merchandise booths will line both sides of Moss Landing road, offering for sale both heirloom-worthy items and bargain wares.

Food and beverage stands will also be in operation.

This annual flea market is sponsored by the Moss Landing Chamber of Commerce as a charitable event to fund community projects, scholarship funds and youth programs. Admission is $1 per person. Pre-school children are admitted free.

Nostalgia caps meeting

One way to escape the long hot summer, is to attend the next meeting of the Big Sur Historical Society, to take place under the redwoods at the Big Sur Land Trust's Henry Miller Memorial Library, just two turns south of Nepenthe Restaurant on the east side of Highway 1.

The event is planned from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, July 28.

Emil White and his caretakers have created a program of Big Sur nostalgia — including the video on Miller's artistic tour of his bathroom. The events will include live musical entertainment of the '40s and '50s, readings from the works of Henry Miller and Emil White and a display of art and rare books. Refreshments will be served.

In addition to the bimonthly newsletters, members of the Big Sur Historical Society receive access to cookbooks, slide shows, potlucks, a reference library of growing dimensions, and tours behind some of the countryside's best kept secrets, including the planned tour inside the Point Sur Lighthouse scheduled for September for members only.

An annual membership ($10 for individuals; $15 for family) this year included tours of Pico Blanco Scout Camp, Grimes Homestead, Nepenthe Trails Club, Jardine Ranch, Livermore Ledge, Packard Rancho Grande, Torre Canyon Ranch, Hopkins/Partington family reunion, and Old Coast Road Tour.

BACH FESTIVAL REVIEW

BY JO ANN LA TORRA

The organ music is probably less familiar to most listeners than the other work. This is unfortunate, because Bach was a great organist. He was famous for his knowledge of organs and was frequently called upon to consult on the building of them. There is organ music from every period of his life.

"Sei gegruesset, Jesu guetig," a set of variations on the chorale, was both the centerpiece and the highlight of the concert. It illustrated many aspects of his organ composition, from the brilliant to the contemplative. It also illustrated why he was so often in trouble with church authorities for making variations so complex that one could not find the chorale tune.

BAROQUE OPERA may be an acquired taste, but, like any other addiction, once you have it you just want more. Like all opera, it has its conventions and idiosyncracies. The plots are negligible, and there is not a whole lot of action. But Das Rheingold isn't exactly a track meet, nor is Oedipus Rex action-packed.

This is truly singers' music, and they certainly ruled the roost during the baroque. Today's singers tend to be more submissive to the stage and music directors, maybe good, maybe not.

In any case, it was a rare treat to hear Imeneo by Handel. With only five characters, and most of the action capable of being displayed by menacing looks, lovesick simpering, and conflicted emotions, the so-called concert staging was quite adequate. The music is very lovely — some of it is even familiar.

Until we have a generation of singers capable of improvising embellishments, we must be grateful for the versatile talents of Bruce Lamott (and others like him) who provided not only the embellishments, but some fine harpsichord accompaniment.

The young singers dispatched their duties with relish, adding to the fun of the evening. All had sufficient technique to manage the fioriture with confidence and aplomb. Alas, the training of young singers continues to force the voice; only Valerie Saalbach (as Clomiris) managed to project without over-singing. The diction might have been better, although one could always follow the plot.

Everyone will have his or her favorite moments. I found two ensemble numbers irresistable: "O, Could I Only Die Now," sung by the trio of wracked lovers; and the moralistic duet, "Though the Way Be Long and Lonely."

The orchestra was a bit shaky, as though it hadn't had enough rehearsal with the singers. Historically, of course, the harpsichordist would have been in charge.

Stage director Albert Takazauckas did a good job of treading the thin line between highly wrought emotion and burlesque. The sumptuous, color-coordinated costumes were courtesy of the San Francisco Opera Company.

For those uncomfortable or unfamiliar with the eccentricities of baroque opera, the symposium on Imeneo on Thursday afternoons is highly recommended.

Sunday afternoon featured the massive B minor Mass of Bach. The soloists were quite acceptable. However, tempos tended to be very slow, and the forces were so large that the contrapuntal lines were not clear.

The morning recitals provide highly diverse programming, including much chamber music that would not be practical on the evening programs.

Among the highlights of the first week were the duet from Cantata 155, "Du musst glauben, du musst hoffen," featuring alto Barbara Smith and tenor Tom Goleeke, and the charming duet from Cantata 78, "Wir eilen mit schwachen." While the voices might not have been ideal for Bach, Pamela Watkins and Debra Patchell did very well by the music.

Peter Rejto distinguished himself with the Bach cello suites. It may not be "pure" Bach, but it is beautiful, sensitive and intelligent playing.

The four harpsichordists: Madeleine Ingram, Igor Kipnis, Bruce Lamott and Elaine Thornburgh, are excellent. Because of the instrument, they are at home in the baroque in a way that the other instrumentalists aren't.

Long chant highlights evening

Free film explores alcoholism

The Recovery Center of the Monterey Peninsula presents free films each Wednesday during July that focus on alcoholism. The films begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Education Center behind Monterey Peninsula Hospital, 576 Hartnell St., Monterey.

Jazz artists portrayed in new sculpture show

Jazz immortals are captured in sculpture by Paul Douglas Wegner, whose works are featured in a special exhibit at The Reid Gallery in Carmel. Live jazz music will accent a visit by the artist to the Carmel gallery, The reception is planned 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday, July 27. Reid Gallery is in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

The son of a naval officer, Wegner was born in New York. He spent much of his childhood traveling with his family from coast to coast.

Wegner attended college in Los Angeles. He served a sculptural apprenticeship for five years, gaining the technical knowledge needed to execute his designs.

The artist has since devoted a decade to mastery of the art of bronze sculpture. Each of his works is painstakingly cast using the lost-wax ("cire perdue") process. Each is made of a special bronze created specifically to meet Wegner's needs for the correct patination and surface quality.

The sculptures are then mounted on preselected bases — black walnut or cherry from Wegner's own property in the Blue Ridge Mountains, marble from Pietra Santa.

Wegner conveys a wide variety of subject matter in his award-winning works.

According to the artist, "My work is not abstract in the sense that the viewer must stretch his imagination to understand what he sees. I attempt to take recognizable human forms and by my use of detailed expression and body movement, tell a story — a story which each viewer may then interpret on his own."

Now a California resident, Wegner employs a wide range of materials to sculpt both miniature and large pieces.

For more information about the jazz-themed exhibit at Reid Gallery, call 624-4243.

Teacher and student display flair for travel photography

WORKING WITHIN a medium that supplies "nostalgia in reverse," John Livingstone has devoted three decades to capturing the human scene on film.

Since 1956 the Carmel Valley resident has been a teacher of photography as well as its ongoing student. His works will be featured in a new show with those of one of his students, Carmel resident Frances Bradley. The "Focus on Travel" show opens Sunday, July 28 at the John Miller Galleries in Carmel.

"I find infinite variety and inspiration in the human scene," Livingstone observed. His artistic mentors, he added, include French documentary lensmen Henri Cartier-Bresson and Robert Doisneau.

"People in their daily tasks are often poetic in their visual impact," he explained. "I feel that I document our times with an historical viewpoint. I often wonder what people in future generations will think."

Livingstone first discovered the Monterey Peninsula in 1951 as a student at the Defense Language Institute, where his subject was Polish. He served as an intelligence officer in Central Europe during those cold war years, but returned to the peninsula in 1954 to teach and pursue commercial photography.

"I always preferred individual or one-on-two instruction," he said. "And that's what I've been doing ever since."

When Frances Bradley first came to him for photography instruction, she told her instructor she hardly knew the front of the camera from its back.

As with all his classes, Livingstone swiftly assessed the technical knowledge or lack thereof of his student, and set to work.

"The average beginner is immersed in talk of f-stops, shutter speed, depth of field. They are unable to pay attention to the important thing: the subject," Livingstone explained.

"Anybody can produce a good photograph technically today because of the advances in equipment. People can now get away from technical concerns to focus on the esthetics."

Livingstone trained on four-by-five cameras in the mid-'50s at Brooks Institute in Santa Barbara. He said that training "taught me to regard each frame of film as precious. Each shot on four-by-five film cost us about 30 cents."

While Livingstone cut his photographic teeth on large format cameras, in recent years he has preferred more portable equipment for such photojournalistic projects as his book, Carmel, By Itself.

The book, its text reproduced in five languages within each copy, contains both portait and scenic shots, and a cross-section of more spontaneous, journalistic views of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

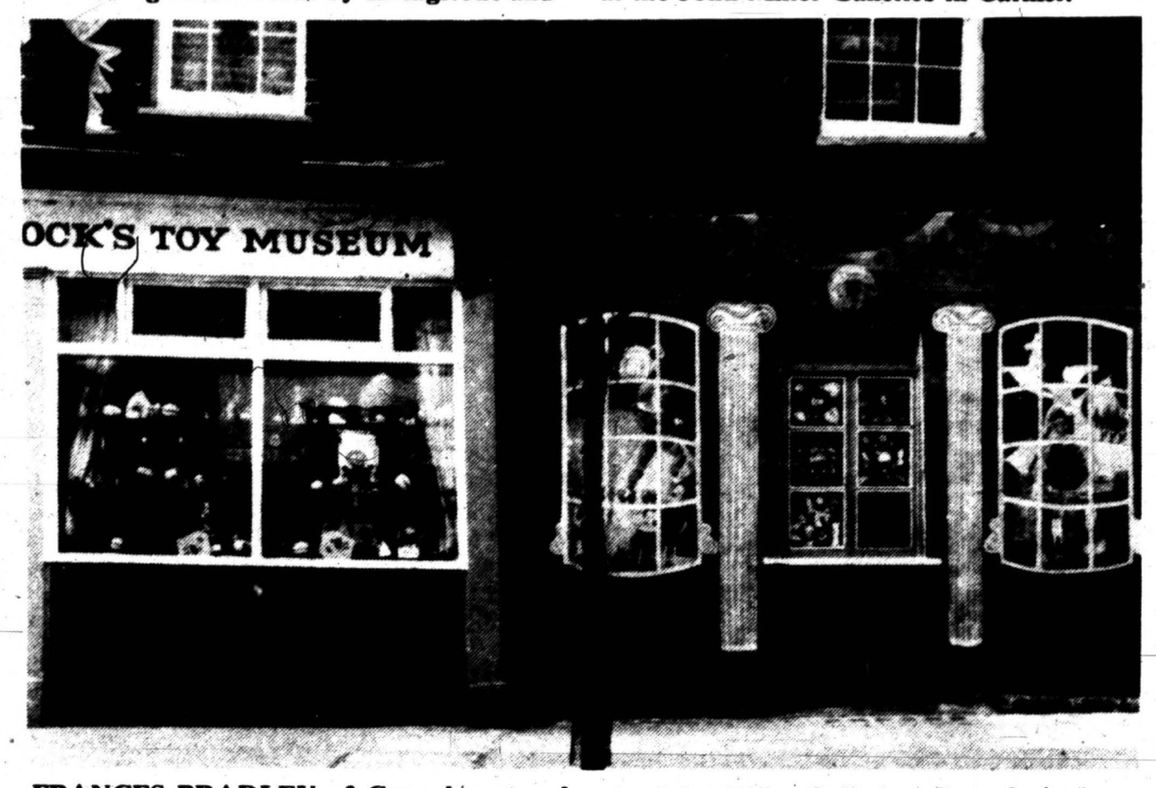
The "Focus on Travel" show at the John Miller Galleries will contain photographs taken by Livingstone in Spain, France, Switzerland, Austria and other sites. But a number of Carmel views are tucked in, as well.

"Even these local scenes are seen from the eyes of a traveling photographer," Livingstone maintained. "One good exercise I've carried out through the years is to show the peninsula to friends from other places. It helps me see this place with renewed interest and enthusiasm. I've trained myself to see this area from the standpoint of a visitor.

"You have to fight the tendency to become blase. It's not a very difficult fight in my case — not in this area.

The "Focus on Travel" exhibit will open with a reception from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, July 28. The John Miller Galleries are on San Carlos Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues in Carmel.

INNKEEPER, La Mancha, Spain, is among the international scenes photographed by John Livingstone. Works by Livingstone and Frances Bradley comprise the "Focus on Travel" exhibit which opens Sunday, July 28 at the John Miller Galleries in Carmel.



FRANCES BRADLEY of Carmel captured this portrait of a London toy museum, featured in the "Focus on Travel" exhibit at the John Miller Galleries, Carmel. A champagne reception will open the exhibit on Sunday, July 28.

Dual show features paintings by Meredith, Colburn

A DUAL SHOW of paintings by Grace Meredith and Sam Colburn opens Monday, July 29 at Margot's Cafe/Gallery, 170 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove.

It is not often that an artist comes along whose imagery is so original that one cannot relate it to any movement or trend. People in general, when looking at any art, are inclined to see only that with which they have had some previous experience. One has to look for the new, and that is what Grace Meredith has to offer.

She has been painting steadily now for several years, but began to study at the San Francisco Arts Institute in 1940-42. Her art career was interrupted by having four children. Now her vitality goes into painting and drawing. Meredith has had one-man shows at Laky's in Carmel, the Pacific Grove Art Center, the Pat Carey Gallery in San Francisco, the La Jolla Art Association and has been part of many group exhibits.

Her ex-husband, Sam Colburn, also will offer paintings and drawings. He began to paint in watercolor when he came to the peninsula in 1937. His degree is in geology, but he decided, as soon as he emerged from college, not to be a rock man from Boulder.

He was born in and spent his first nine years in Denver. During that time he saw Buffalo Bill in his coffin. Colburn began to draw at the Chouinard School of Art in Los Angeles in 1933. His teacher was Don Graham. He learned to avoid cast shadows, and went on to further life study in Long Beach in adult education classes. He sold out his interest in the Piper Cub and Aircraft Associates in 1937 and moved to Carmel.

Colburn became a member of the Carmel Art Association in 1940. Although his favorite medium is watercolor, he has painted in oil, has Luminall mural panels at Bruno's in Carmel and a mural in tile at the county courthouse on Aguajito Road.

He has had one-man shows in San Francisco, New York and Tucson, Ariz., not to mention Virginia City and Elko, Nev. On the peninsula, he has exhibited solo at least 10 times, and has taken many prizes over a period of some 45 years. Colburn is art columnist for the Carmel Pine Cone.

Eugene Garin seascapes exhibited

SEASCAPES captured in oil by Russian-born artist Eugene Garin will be featured in a one-man show at Simic Galleries of Carmel.

A champagne reception will take place 5 to 9 p.m. Saturday, July 27, at San Carlos Street and Sixth Avenue in Carmel.

Considered by many to be the patriarch of modern seascape art, Garin's paintings hang in collections around the globe, including Canada, England, South America, South Africa, Japan, Mexico and the Soviet Union. Garin's artwork is represented in the permanent collection of the Russian consulate in San Francisco and at the Presidential Palace in Panama.

Garin is noted for his introduction of the "transparent wave," commonly referred to as the Garin wave.

QUAIL LODGE REALTY

Club Place brings back good old-fashioned value in Carmel Valley.

Remember the good old days when a real sense of value prevailed in the housing market?

Well, Club Place is bringing the good times back. With the best true-blue value Carmel Valley has seen.

Nestled in the 1,700-acre private preserve of Carmel Valley Ranch, Club Place is built alongside the magnificent 18-hole Pete Dye championship golf course. And its adjacent to a superb tennis club with 12 pro courts.

Consisting of only 46 brilliantly designed townhomes, Club Place is very private, very exclusive. With such marvelous architectural touches as vaulted ceilings in some plans, cathedral and nine foot ceilings in others. All living rooms have fireplaces. As do many master bedroom suites. And there are whirlpool baths, greenhouse-windowed kitchens, redwood decks, family rooms, and countless pleasures that hark back to the days when builders built real honest value into their homes.

Current prices for our lavish Carmel Valley townhomes start at just $264,000. Nothing in the Valley even comes close.

But please hurry. There are only a limited number of townhomes remaining.

Two and three bedroom, two and three bath townhomes from $264,000 to $397,000.

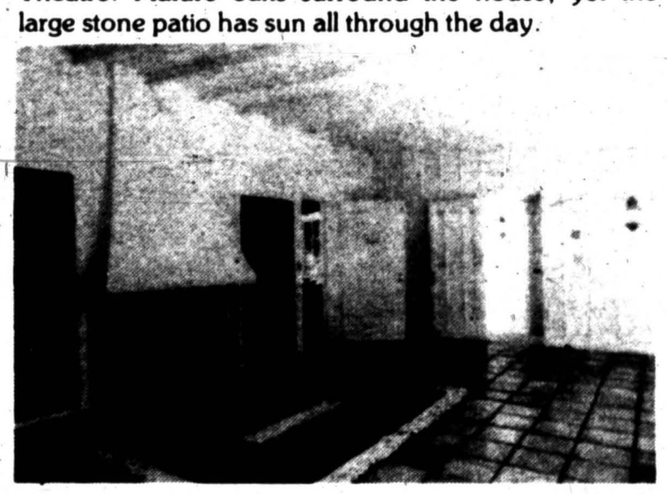
THE ULTIMATE CARMEL COTTAGE OPEN FOR INSPECTION:

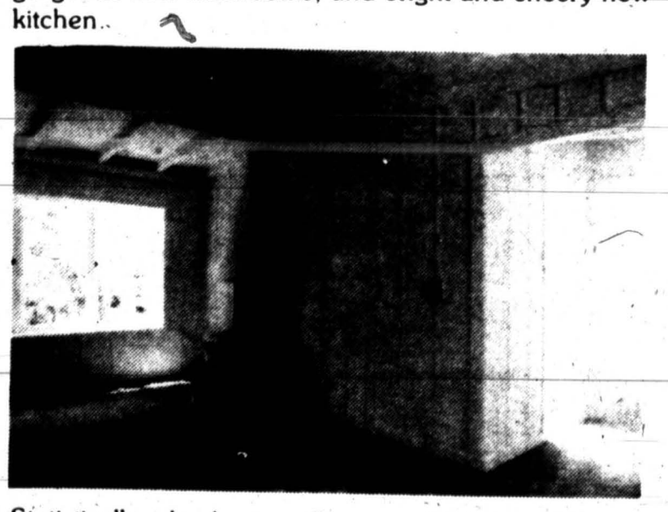
Sat. and Sun. 1-4
Southwest Corner 8th and Santa Fe Streets

The elements which make up the perfect Carmel Cottage are location, charm, privacy, utility, and flexibility. Some houses have a few of these qualities but only rarely do you find that home which "has it all."

This property consists of two full Carmel Lots, located just two blocks from the corner of the commercial district, yet very quiet and very private. The beach is a short walk, as are Sunset Center and the Forest Theatre. Mature oaks surround the house, yet the large stone patio has sun all through the day.



The home was built in the 1930's...designed by famed San Francisco architect Gardiner Daly. In the past six months it has been treated to the most painstaking restoration and remodel we have ever witnessed. New wiring, new plumbing, new roof, new tile floors, gorgeous new bathrooms, and bright and cheery new kitchen..



Statistically, the home offers two bedrooms (master with fireplace), two baths, large central living room, large kitchen with breakfast nook, lots of storage and closets, plus a detached two car garage. A special bonus comes with the property in the form of full plans and all permits for a new double garage with guest house attached. Call us for more details or drop by for a treat; we know you will love this house. $305,000.

Popular Eateries

The Bagel Bakery's ovens turn out fresh bagels four times every day . . . in a wide variety that you'll love. Take a bunch of bagels home, or sit down and enjoy "create your own" sandwiches and home-made soups. And be sure to treat yourself to Bagel Bakery specialties, such as fresh muffins by Mostly Muffins, "Smoothies & Eggstacies," desserts by Creme de la Creme, and their private blend of Hillside Coffee. Visit Bagel Bakery (tucked down Jeffers Way) from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sundays: 9 to 5.

Bud's Ice Cream of San Francisco gives you a choice so rich that you can try a different flavor every day of the month! Bud's is famous for its sinfully delicious homemade style ice cream, sherbet, and Gelato. Buy one scoop in your favorite: sugar or regular cone. Or purchase enough ice cream to treat a party of 100 with rare flavors, including Blueberry Cheesecake, Bud's Cookie Crunch, or Martinica al Rhum Gelato. Take a Bud's Ice Cream break at 121 Crossroads Blvd.

Cafe Central is a great place for the whole family to dine. Herb and Tara Evans present wholesome foods, plus a unique concept. Patrons are encouraged to create their own meals via "free choice" combinations of any delicious item on Cafe Central's varied menu. This husband and wife team have built three successful restaurants together. In fact, Tara is the Chef, and daughter, Shelley, the General Manager! Breakfast is served all day, from 7 a.m. Dinner from 5 to 10 p.m. (to 11 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays) at 123 Crossroads Blvd. down Park Walk.

Straw Hat Pizza has become a favorite place to eat since new owners Jim, Arne and Dick have taken over and completely refurbished this Crossroads eatery between Long's and Safeway. Straw Hat's the way to enjoy pizza . . . and so much more. Start with your choice of Original, Pan, or Fresh-to-Bake Pizzas. Then take on their rave-review soup 'n' salad bar that features 60 different fresh items. Hot Hat Sandwiches, of course, to give you lots of variety. And at Straw Hat, you can eat in or "to go" . . . or have a party for 10 to 130!

Gifts for Everyone...

The Crossroads is such a fun place to explore, for you can find just the right present for family and friends... no matter how varied may be their individual interests. Stroll into the following shops and discover a wide world of gift-worthy ideas:

Cards and Gift

Carmel Mercantile Company means merchandise with a design flair for you, your home, your office. New are the Bisque vases for floor or table; as always, writing paper by the pound, dinnerware by Marimekko and more. Lots of European cards, too! Owner Cheryl Bindel has returned from abroad with additional treasures. For example, her "next door" store houses antique bleached-pine furniture, area rugs, chairs of bent twigs and one-of-a-kind decorator items. Pillows, too in a full spectrum of colors. Pick some up at 114 Crossroads Boulevard.

Cardiff Stationery has a complete line of office supplies, unusual greeting cards and imported porcelains. Just the place to find the right combination of quality and personal service.

At Home, With Style!

The Plantation Peddler is an American Country Store, a must for country collectors. They offer a wide variety of Pine furniture, armoires, beds, tables, cupboards and benches. And, for the collector, a wonderful selection of antique toys, quilts, antique linens, as well as pierced and stenciled lampshades. Rugs, pottery and just about anything for the Country look at home. Stop by 116 Crossroads Blvd. and see Habershani Plantation furniture, plus Simms and Thayer, East Coast specialists in antique Country reproductions.

Bay Video Center, the complete home video store with one of the largest home-movie selections on the Central Coast.

Chi Design Imports will take you around the world in one hour. That's the time it takes to "travel" through this new shop that displays fine oriental furniture, European paintings, African sculpture and Celadon vases.

Scandia Down Shops are the nation's foremost importer of down comforters. In addition, Scandia Down carries beautiful bedruffs, shams and pillows. Cotton sheetcase ensembles, too.
